LORRIES, VANS: MOTOR & STEAM HAULAGE.

ALWAYS AT THE TOP.

KARRIER MOTOR LORRIES

have always led the way in efficient and reliable transport—right from their birth they were hailed as THE BEST CARS IN THE WORLD FOR COMMERCE. Here are a few opinions expressed by Irish users:—

"Dear Sirs,—We have pleasure in saying that the 5-ton 'KARRIER' Lorry which we recently purchased from you is giving us every satisfaction. It exhibits great power on hills, and runs very smoothly.—Yours truly, Cork, 1919.

"Dear Sirs,—The 'KARRIER' Chassis purchased from you last July has given us the greatest satisfaction up to the present. Not alone is it running well, but it is causing us no trouble whatever, not even so far as to remove one nut. The average journey per day is eighty miles, and carries 4 tons each way. We are therefore greatly pleased, and we wish to bring under your notice that the oiling system is the best we have seen in all our experience of lorries.—We remain, yours faithfully, Dunmore, 1919.

"Dear Sirs,—Our five-ton 'KARRIER' which we purchased through you has been very satisfactory. Its power with full load gives an ample reserve for any hills in the hilliest district that we have gone into yet. We have never been left on the road either loaded or unloaded. As for the supply of spare parts, we have always been able to telephone through and have them by the next passenger train, which only means a delay of a few hours. This in itself is a great matter for any user of a commercial vehicle.—Yours truly, (Signed)——— 21/10/19.

"Dear Sirs,—Having had one of your 'KARRIER' Char-a-bancs for the past six months, we can say from experience that it is most satisfactory. It is greatly admired in the surrounding counties for its power and silence. It runs even more silent than most pleasure cars.—Faithfully yours, Kilkenny, 1919.

"Dear Sirs,—The 5-ton 'KARRIER' Lorry supplied to us last August, I am pleased to be able to inform you, has more than realised our most sanguine expectations. She is always ready for use, gives no trouble, and both climbs and pulls under full load with the same ease as though unloaded.—Yours faithfully, Athy, Co. Kildare, 1919.

"Dear Sirs,—The 'KARRIER' 4-ton Lorry which I had from you in June last is giving every satisfaction. I am using it in a hilly country with full loads on a War Dept. subsidy body, and have never had to call upon the lower gears. The car is a good one.—Yours faithfully, Edgeworthstown, 1919.

"P.S.—Petrol consumption works out at 8 m.p.g. or more with Benzol mixture."

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The high pressure continues to spread towards the British Isles from the S.W., and fairer conditions are probable temporarily in all districts. The passage of further secondaries, however, is likely to cause a recurrence of unsettled weather, in the northern districts at least.

Ireland.—Winds mainly westerly, moderate; fair generally, but local showers, perhaps local thunder; visibility good; rather mild during the day, slight ground frost inland at night.

MONDAY, MAY 10, 1920.

Speaking in the Italian Chamber on the San Remo Conference, Signor Nitti said that Italy believed in the formation of democratic government in Germany, and the transforming of that country into a great centre of production.

According to a Copenhagen telegram, Rumania is making great military preparations, and is anxious to conclude an alliance with Poland against Russia.

An unconfirmed report which reached New York on Saturday stated that Mexican revolutionaries had captured Mexico City, and that President Carranza had fled to Vera Cruz.

The Confederation of Labour is seeking to extend the French railway strike, and has called on a number of outside unions to join the railwaymen.

Three men who attempted to hold up a post office in Sheffield last month were on Saturday sentenced to five years' penal servitude and twenty strokes of the "cat."

Detective-Sergeant Revell, of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, was shot at and wounded in four places in Phibsborough road on Saturday morning. His condition is stated not to be serious.

Sergeant Brady, who was severely wounded in the attack on the Constabulary Barracks at Rush, died last night at Steevens's Hospital, Dublin.

The Police Barrack at Cloyne, Co. Cork, was attacked and burned early on Sunday morning. The assault was made by a considerable body of men armed with revolvers and rifles. Constable Dunn was wounded in the head. Two raiders are believed to have been mortally wounded.

The police barracks at Newtownhamilton (Co. Armagh) were attacked early on Sunday morning by about 200 armed men. The building was partially blown up and afterwards set on fire. The defenders retired to the yard whence they continued their defence, and ultimately the raiders were defeated.

A man named McDonald was wounded in Londonderry on Saturday night during a row, in the course of which shots were fired.

An extensive drive took place at Carnakit, Co. Roscommon, on Saturday, owing to a local grazier's declining to give up his land. A similar drive occurred in Clogher on Friday night. At Ballinasloe on Saturday eight persons were sentenced to two months' imprisonment in default of finding bail. At first they refused to recognise the court, but afterwards appealed.

The Belfast building trade have accepted the offer made by the employers of a 44-hour week at 2s. 5d. per hour.

The Jubilee Handicap of 3,000 sovs., at Kempton Park on Saturday, was won by Sir William Nelson's Tangiers, who started at 100 to 6. Mr. A. R. Cox's Manilardo was second, and Mr. R. Thorburn's Monticeth third.

France and Germany.

The increasing dependence of politics on economics is one of the most interesting phenomena of international affairs. The present relations between France and Germany constitute a case in point. Before the war Europe was quickly becoming an economic unit. Every part of it was dependent for something on every other part, and a very delicately adjusted system of international trade was in operation. The war destroyed that system, and, since the Armistice, most of the European peoples have been doing their utmost to reconstruct it. In this respect France, unfortunately, has lagged behind. Germany and France in several respects are economic complements each of the other. Of the two, perhaps, Germany has more economic freedom than France. The war stopped all intercourse between the two countries, and France got the things which, in the natural course of events, she would have got from across the Rhine, from across the English Channel and the Atlantic. For the first year after the Armistice there was no economic rapprochement between France and Germany. The only thing France would touch from Germany was an indemnity, and she was resolute in her determination to boycott German goods. This spirit was magnificent, but it was not "business." Great Britain and Italy showed no such scruples. Italy, through Signor Nitti, has confessed frankly that she must trade with Germany. Great Britain, on the other hand, indulged in a short spell of vigorous anti-dumping propaganda. Nevertheless, she soon established Chambers of Commerce in various German towns with a view to securing what was best in the German markets, while finding a ready market for her own available exports. Needless to say, Holland, Spain, Scandinavia, Switzerland—even America and Japan—lost no time. They, too, took advantage of the state of the German exchange and placed their orders with alacrity.

Now France has recognised her mistake, but she has recognised it too late. Consequently a curious state of affairs has arisen. There is no doubt that French industrialists have been pursuing a policy of laissez faire. They have had hopes of a large indemnity from Germany, and the Government has been intending to get a big loan on that security. France has not taxed herself to any appreciable extent, and economically she is, unfortunately, in a very bad way. Now her business men are beginning to look to their natural economic allies, who are also their natural economic enemies. They want to purchase goods from Germany. Coal and agricultural implements constitute their principal need, but the German manufacturers declare that they have nothing to offer. Their order books are filled with orders from Great Britain, Italy, and other countries for years to come, and they have nothing left for France. Furthermore, they have made themselves virtually independent of French produce. Luxuries they do not want, and iron they are now getting from Sweden in exchange for manufactured goods of all kinds. Now France must get her agricultural implements somewhere. She cannot, or will not, make them herself. Also she must have coal, since her own output is not sufficient for her needs. The state of her exchange vis-à-vis of America and Great Britain is such as virtually to preclude her from purchases in either country. Her exchange in Berlin, on the other hand, is extremely favourable. Consequently she is forced to buy from Germany. The question to be answered is: Why do the Germans refuse to sell her what she wants to buy?

The excuse of inability is moonshine. Germany can supply France if she wants to supply her. Also there is no question of national sentiment. In business the Germans have as little sentiment as they have scruples in war. They would trade with Beelzebub for a profit. We believe that the reason of their hesitation springs from a political source. The Teuton is a clever schemer. This month there is to be a conference at Spa. It will be attended by three German delegates whose one object will be to secure certain important modifications in the Treaty of Versailles. Their effort will be opposed by M. Millerand, Signor Nitti, and Mr. Lloyd George. Now the Germans have taken the measure of their masters. They know that Signor Nitti is likely to be in favour of a certain leniency, and that Mr. Lloyd George, if the British people give him the chance, may also soften his victory-hardened heart. They know, too, that M. Millerand will oppose them tooth and nail. Here comes their chance of playing an economic card—and the Germans are excellent economists. They can say to M. Millerand: "You must get coal and agricultural implements. We have both, and are not such fools as to believe that you can get them from anybody else. What are you going to do about it?" In other words, their object seems to be to hold an economic pistol at the head of France until she agrees to a modification of the terms of the Peace Treaty. The idea is cunning; but the Germans, as usual, are at fault in their psychology. They ignore, or seem to ignore, the effect of such a move on the Italian and British delegates to Spa. France, quite possibly, has not been very far-sighted in her economic policy, but she is the Ally of Italy and of Great Britain. Germany, in spite of the Peace Treaty, is still virtually an enemy. Therefore, if Great Britain and Italy are forced by the Germans to take sides in a Franco-German issue, there can be only one result. Germany will suffer.

America and the League.

Many months ago, when Senator Lodge led the Old Guard Republicans in the United States Senate to the attack on President Wilson, he selected as his immediate objective the League of Nations clauses of the Peace Treaty. At that time some of the more moderate American journals, including the New York Times, pointed out that no good could come out of an attempt to make domestic capital out of a purely international issue. They urged that, while for the time being the campaign might injure the prestige of President Wilson, who had laid himself open to attack, and even might impair the position of the Democratic Party, no visible or lasting benefit was likely to be reaped by the attackers. The truth of these observations is only now beginning to be apparent. Having begun their campaign in the die-hard Republican spirit, Senator Lodge and his friends have now been compelled to "sell out" to Senator Johnson and the Progressive Republicans, by whom they have just been defeated, for the third or fourth time, in the State of California. At a meeting of Senators of all shades of Republican opinion, held within the last two days, it has been decided to abandon the purely negative attitude of Senator Lodge and his supporters in favour of a positive programme which has been urged consistently by Senator Johnson. This programme presumably will include a wholesale condemnation of the League of Nations. It will contain also the definite outlines of the policy which, in the view of the Republican Senators, the United States should adopt towards all wars, alliances, international quarrels and complications, and other questions of weltpolitik. This change of front was bound to come, because the exigencies of the Presidential election require the Republican sections to unite if they are to enjoy any prospects of victory. It is, however, Senator Hiram Johnson and his Progressives, not Senator Lodge and the Old Guard Republicans, who are going to call the tune from this time forward. The Lodge Republicans were, on the whole, friendly to the Allied cause, and have some knowledge of European political affairs. Senator Johnson and his friends are unsympathetic with Europe, ignorant of her affairs, and strongly inclined to regard an anti-British policy as a paying game. They represent the West and Middle West as against the more civilised Atlantic seaboard. So far as the League of Nations is concerned, the capture of the Republican Party by the extremists is of small importance, since the League of Nations is already a dead issue. Nevertheless, these evidences of strength on the part of Senator Johnson bode ill for the chances of Mr. Hoover as next President of the United States.

The Teachers' Claims.

It is announced that a general strike of lay secondary teachers in Irish Roman Catholic schools will begin to-morrow. The Protestant teachers hope to be able to secure a living wage without striking; but all their sympathies are with their Roman Catholic colleagues. The final offer of the Roman Catholic Headmasters' Association was rejected at a recent conference. It proposed increases of £40 on £160 for every male registered teacher and of £30 on £110 for every female registered teacher, with one-half of these increases for unregistered teachers. Thus the proposed maximum for a married teacher with a family was £200. That is bad enough; but of the total number of 506 lay teachers in the Roman Catholic secondary schools many are unregistered, and some of them—married men—are trying to support their families on £3 a week. The financial status of these educated men, who are bound to maintain a respectable appearance, is much worse than that of the Dublin Corporation's scavengers. We may be perfectly certain that, if their position was not really desperate, they would not have resorted to the weapon of the strike. Indeed, it is not merely desperate, but exasperating. Two Viceregal Committees have acknowledged the grievances of the lay secondary teachers and of the national teachers, and the Irish Education Bill includes new scales of payment for both which, if enforced, would constitute a living wage. The Bill is "held up," however, by the fierce opposition of the Roman Catholic Church on religious grounds; and in the meanwhile all the teachers, primary and secondary, are being kept out of their increases, and many of the secondary teachers are starving. The State ought to pay them its debt of honour—and of expediency—without further hesitation. The existence of many thousands of suffering and discontented teachers in Ireland is a direct menace to the nation's peace. Few Irishmen care twopence about the fate of Clause I. of the Home Rule Bill which will be taken in Committee to-day. If, on the other hand, Sir Hamar Greenwood should announce in Parliament this week that he proposes to settle the teachers' claims, he would put himself instantly on good terms with a large and influential section of the Irish people.

A Smoke Tax.

The Manchester City Council, pursuing its campaign against the smoke nuisance, has published the results of an inquiry into "the comparative cost of family washing in Manchester and Harrogate." The Irish visitor to London brings home two disagreeable memories of that vast city—the hardness of its water for shaving purposes and the ravaging effect of its dirt on his clean collars. Compared with the Mancunian, however, the Londoner "ever delicately marches through most pellucid air." In Manchester curtains last only half as long as in Blackpool and only three-quarters as long as in London. The average "weekly wash" occupies sixty minutes longer than in Harrogate, at an additional cost, for fuel and materials, of sevenpence-halfpenny. There are 112,600 families in Manchester which "do their own washing," occupying an hour longer in the process than would be necessary in a clean town. A waste of 668 years per annum is thus the penal sentence which the housewives of Manchester serve for black smoke. The City Council calculates that the "black smoke tax" equals annually £1 for every citizen. Yet there are even grimier places in the world than Manchester. The corresponding "smoke tax" for Pittsburg, U.S.A., is estimated at £4 per head of the population.

The King and Queen of the Belgians flew from Brussels to Farnborough yesterday in order to be present at the wedding of Lady Cynthia Curzon, daughter of Earl Curzon, to Mr. Oswald Mosley, M.P., at the Chapel Royal, London, on Tuesday. Meanwhile they are staying at the country seat of the Earl and Countess Curzon.

Viscount Northcliffe has accepted the invitation of the Council of the Newspaper Press Fund to become hon. treasurer of the Corporation, in succession to the late Lord Russell, of Liverpool.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

It is said to-day that the Hungarian Government has decided to refuse to sign the Peace Treaty if the Allies insist upon its going through as it stands. This statement, however, is qualified by another, and one that makes a considerable difference. If the Allies insist on the Treaty, the Hungarian Government will resign, and Count Apponyi will be asked to form another. Therefore, it seems most probable that the Hungarians will consider it best to sign, and make an end of an awkward situation. They still have the Rumanians on their flank, and the Rumanians are prepared for war, if necessary.

The apparent success of the Poles against the Soviet Government of Russia is giving great pain to the pro-Bolsheviks here, and many are the questions addressed to the Government concerning any possible support they may be giving to the Poles. It might have been imagined from all the reports of victories achieved by the Bolsheviks that the Soviet Government was in a safe and sound position. Russian opinion in this country, however, says that the Soviet Government is anything but safe, and that, if it should withdraw its troops from its other fronts to meet the Poles, there will be risings in the vacated areas.

The late Crown Princess of Sweden is to have a beautiful funeral, inasmuch as black is to be taboo and its place taken by white, with masses of flowers, especially dark red roses. The road is to be strewn with white anemones. The Kings of Scandinavia are to be present, since the Kings of Sweden, Denmark, and Norway have intimated their intention of attending. A Memorial Service was held at the Swedish Church in Harcourt street here this morning, and there was a crowded congregation representative of the Swedish community in London. Count Wrangel, the Swedish Minister, with M. Sahlin, the Swedish Consul-General, and their respective staffs, were present. Pastor Hellestorn paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of the late Princess.

The extraordinary scenes at Leamington on Friday have made a great impression here, and the action taken by the Free Liberals is strongly condemned. The followers of Mr. Asquith have made a tremendous mistake in tactics, and it is quite possible that the shouting at Leamington may prove to be the death-song of a once great party. The man-in-the-street knows full well the part played in the early days of the war by some of the men who howled down those who have not spared themselves to secure victory. The whole business was planned, for the Liberal sheep were most carefully separated from the Coalition goats, and, while the platform to the right of the chairman was occupied by the Coalition members, the left was reserved for Liberals, who joined freely in the shouting and jeering at the Ministers. Many telling remarks were exchanged, but it remained for Mr. Bertram Watson, the member for Stockton-on-Tees, to crush the Liberals with a question on a point of order asking whether it was true that Sir Hamar Greenwood had been returned at Sunderland by a majority of nearly 9,000.

During the coming week it is probable that the Coalition Liberals will meet to decide their further action, and in any case to deliver the speeches that had been so carefully prepared for the Leamington meeting. The Free Liberals have declared war, and they are likely to get it; and it is quite possible that the wise men among them can see that the insults poured on the Liberals who have worked hard to win the war can have only one result in the constituencies. The Asquithian party is a small one, and there are no signs that it will grow.

The House of Commons is not looking forward to a long recess at Whitsuntide, nor is there likely to be any fuss about the shortness of the holiday, since it is generally recognised by the members that the Government are doing all in their power to secure that there shall be no autumn session. The Government is now confidently expecting that there will be a considerable saving of time on the Committee stage of the Government of Ireland Bill, for the list of amendments is singularly small for such an important measure. When the House meets to-morrow the Order Paper will have a list of only 24 pages to consider.

Mr. G. Locker-Lampson will ask the Prime Minister to-morrow if he will state what Minister of the Crown will, after the passing of the Government of Ireland Bill, answer questions relating to Ireland in the House of Commons. He will also ask whether it is proposed to have an Irish Office or an Agent-General for Ireland in London if the Bill passes, and whether Irish members will be eligible to serve on Standing Committees or Private Bill Committees dealing with purely British affairs after the passing of the Bill.

Mr. Hurd will ask the Prime Minister to-morrow whether he has received from the Paulton and other branches of Comrades of the Great War resolutions expressing grave concern at the news which reaches ex-Service men in this country from many parts of Ireland of the conditions of persecution under which ex-Service men are living in that country, and the danger to their wives and families; and whether he will inform the House what steps are being taken to give immediate protection to these men who went without any compulsion to fight side by side in the war with their comrades of Great Britain and the overseas parts of the Empire.

Wherever motorists have congregated during the week-end the main topic of conversation has been the new taxation proposals, and, so severely has the plan of taxation by horse-power been condemned that it would not be surprising if considerable modification were made in the proposals before they are put into force.

Sir Richard Cooper is to ask the President of the Board of Trade to-morrow if he will state what steps he is taking to protect the country from a famine in paper supplies; is he aware that it is impossible to dispose of waste paper in bulk; and has he any information to show that a monopoly exists in the supply of any, or all, ordinary qualities of paper.

A straw shows the direction of the wind, and this thought struck me yesterday morning when I saw, after an absence of years, Gorgonzola cheese on sale in the windows of a provision shop. The price was 4s. 6d. a pound, but I found on asking that there was a steady demand for the cheese in small quantities, so many people being delighted to see an old friend again. Inside the shop I saw another straw, for on the previous Saturday five young women stood behind the counter. Yesterday their places were taken by young, healthy-looking, obliging ex-soldiers.

The Olympic Games, which are to be held at Antwerp this year, are to be commemorated by the Belgian Government by the issue of a suitable series of postage stamps. They will be of three values—5, 10, and 25 centimes, in the standard colours of the International Postal Union, and the design will include a disc-thrower, a postman on foot, and a quadriga.

SOLDIERS' SEPARATION ALLOWANCE.

It is officially announced that in the case of all soldiers who died after 30th April, 1920, while serving with the Colours, separation allowance at the previous rate will be continued until further notice to their wives, children, or dependents for four weeks after the date of death, and not for twenty-six weeks, as has formerly been the rule.

PROPOSED BUSINESS FLIGHT.

Owing to unavoidable circumstances, Mr. W. J. McCormack, of the Dunlop Rubber Company, has been obliged to postpone temporarily his proposed business flight to Ireland.

THE HOME RULE BILL.

SUGGESTED IRISH AMENDMENTS.

The group that has been formed in Dublin, with Lord Dunraven as President, to secure amendments to the Home Rule Bill has issued a memorandum of its proposals. With other matters the group suggests that each of the two Legislatures shall consist of a Senate and a House of Commons; that the definition of Northern Ireland shall be the province of Ulster unless, by a referendum taken in Donegal, Cavan, and Monaghan, these counties shall declare their preference for the arrangement proposed in the bill; that the Council of Ireland shall consist of the Senates of the Southern and Northern Legislatures meeting jointly; that the postal service, Post Office Savings Bank, and Trustee Savings Bank, designs for stamps, and Public Record Office shall be placed at once under the control of the Council of Ireland; that the imposition and collection of Customs and Excise shall be given to the Irish Legislatures; that the Chairman of the Joint Exchequer Board shall be nominated by His Majesty from one of the Dominions; and that the Judiciary shall remain as at present, the appointment of judges to be made by the Imperial Government until the date of Irish union.

THE IRISH NATIONAL WAR MEMORIAL.

TOTAL OF £40,898.

The Standing Committee of the Irish National War Memorial met at the office, 191 Great Brunswick street, Dublin, on Friday last, and decided to publish the following statement for the information of the subscribers and public:—

The total sum collected to date is £40,898 8s. 9d., and, while the Committee will be very glad to receive any further subscriptions that may be offered to them, they have decided to close their public list. The money has been invested in Exchequer Bonds and Treasury Bills in the names of trustees.

The Committee are still occupied in collecting the names of the Irishmen who fell in the great war, of which upwards of sixteen thousand have already been traced and recorded. The various schemes which have been submitted to them are under careful consideration.

THE EDUCATION BILL.

MR. THOMAS O'DONNELL'S VIEWS.

The annual meeting of the Killorglin Secondary School was held on Saturday at the Carnegie Hall, when a large gathering of the parents and general public attended.

Mr. Thomas O'Donnell said that he asked the parents to attend so that they might confer on the all-important question of the higher education of their children. He was happy to tell them that the reports of the Board's inspectors on the work done in their school during the year was of the most flattering character. They were amongst the first in Ireland to use the phonograph in teaching languages. All over Europe higher education was free. The son of the artisan got as good a chance as the son of the millionaire. How different things were in Ireland, where secondary education was practically barred to the poor. An attempt was made in the Education Bill, recently introduced, to give to the Irish poor the same educational opportunities which other nations possessed, and he was satisfied, when this bill was passed into law, as he hoped it soon would be, with some necessary amendments, that the poor of this country would have a fair and open chance to compete for the highest prizes in the commercial and political life of Ireland. He had on previous occasions expressed his views on this bill. He felt it was the most progressive bill ever offered to this country, and he thought so still. The teachers—primary and secondary—all over Ireland were unanimous in support of it. They were educated Irishmen, born of the people. They lived in daily contact with the people. They saw the many cruel drawbacks that existed at present for the poor man's child, and they had vigorously and unanimously given their support to a scheme which, if carried into law, would bless their land. What he had said of the primary and secondary teachers applied equally to the Christian Brothers, and, in fact, to all who were actually engaged in the work of teaching our children. The bill had been attacked not with a view to improve, but to kill it. While teachers were paid worse than the humblest labourer, and while our country suffered from the most reactionary and undemocratic system of education in Europe, a blank negative scarcely could be regarded as a fitting way of meeting so serious a situation. The secondary teachers of Cork were on strike, and who could wonder that their patience was worn out? Fancy University graduates, many of them with families, being paid a starvation wage of £[illegible] a week while doing the highest work that could be done in any country. This bill, if passed, would immediately give them a living wage in some measure proportionate to the national importance of their work. In that school they had to pay fees which, though not very high, were often sufficient to keep out the poor. If the bill passed, the door would be open to all without fees of any kind, and instead of seventy pupils and four teachers he hoped to see one hundred pupils and six teachers. If the bill did not pass, they could not pay their teachers, and that school would either have to close down or the present fees paid by the pupils must be doubled.

THE CENTRAL EMERGENCY FUND.

A meeting of the Diocesan Committee of the Central Emergency Fund was held last Wednesday at 43 Kildare street, Dublin. Mr. [illegible] Batchelor was in the chair, and there were also present:—Sir W. Goulding, Bart.; Mr. Justice Samuels, Sir Alfred Irwin, Messrs. W. Ireland, Blair White, H. O'Connor, and the Rev. E. [illegible] Lewis-Crosby (Hon. Secretary), and Professor Thrift (Hon. Treasurer).

Receipts to the amount of £6,265 and promises to the amount of £2,500 were recorded. The date for closing the accounts for the year was fixed to June 30th, as it was hoped that the parochial hon. treasurers of the fund who had not done so already would have sent their receipts by that time. It was reported that considerable inconvenience and delay had been caused because correspondence from the United Diocese and cheques were sent sometimes to the Representative Church Body office which should go to the diocesan hon. secretary and hon. treasurers respectively.

The Committee was unanimously of opinion that only under very exceptional circumstances grants should be made in the case of parishes which had refused to co-operate in collecting the fund; the Committee also decided to suggest to those responsible for the distribution of the funds in the united diocese that they should not confine allocation to incumbents [illegible] those whose incomes were under £3[illegible] [illegible] unbeneficed clergy whose incomes were [illegible] £160, but to use their discretion in each individual instance.

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND AND HOME RULE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The General Synod of the Church of Ireland is about to meet. One has heard nothing of any proposed action there condemnatory of the atrocious Home Rule Bill now before Parliament. To me it seems inconceivable that this Synod, so thoroughly representative of the Church in all its attributes, is solemnly to meet, deliberate, and disperse without taking any notice of a menace calculated to shake the Church to its very foundations—a Bill condemned alike by all Unionists, by all Nationalists (if any still exist), by all Sinn Feiners.

When one remembers the old days—the magnificent opposition of Primate Alexander in his speech to an audience of 10,000 people at the Albert Hall, and the action of the Synod itself on a former occasion when a Home Rule measure threatened—one can but hope that it will not allow itself to be so benumbed as to fail to register a passionate protest against a Bill which, if passed, would not only destroy the Church of Ireland, but plunge the whole country into a permanent chaos of unrest and disaster.—Yours, etc.,

J. MACKAY WILSON.

On Saturday Colonel Murray-White, the Officer Commanding the troops in Clare, lodged a claim for £5,000 compensation for injuries sustained by him while endeavouring to disperse a procession in Ennis, which was celebrating the release of the Mountjoy prisoners on April 14th.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

A NATIONAL POLICY.

The Times in a leading article to-day says:—

In the Committee stage of the Government of Ireland Bill the Ministry will meet a stern test of their quality and of their pretensions. Not merely will it prove their legislative capacity, but also the reality of their claim to be the expositors of the national will. During the prolonged discussion which the internal condition of Ireland has stimulated and kept prominently forward we have maintained that the task of British statesmanship lay in seeking a broad national settlement rather than the vindication of a sectional policy. The Government of Ireland Bill, proceeds The Times, is at least a fair basis of discussion. It contains elements which must necessarily be present in any true agreement between the British and the Irish peoples, but in its present form it offers little hope of settlement. We have never believed that a fair compromise between the contending Irish parties—the readiest and the most certain criterion of justice which the Government could have established—would gain the support of any of them. Nevertheless, there is unquestionably force in the claim, that this bill is governed by considerations of safeguarding Ulster rather than by that of accomplishing an Irish union. In proportion as it appears that undue provision for the prejudices rather than the just rights of Ulster Unionists has restricted the offer of the Government, the bill must lack the quality of a true and enduring settlement. It might, indeed, be possible to establish in Ireland a balance of power between North and South, which the weight of this country might hold in equipoise, but who shall say that such a balance would be the equivalent of peace? The Irish Convention failed to secure an Irish settlement, but those Irishmen who took part in it saw with true instinct the possibility of agreement, the form that agreement should take, and the means by which it might be accomplished. Events have marched since then. Partition has become an essential preliminary to ultimate union, but the Government have strayed far from the path so plainly indicated to them, and also, in our view, from the prospect of ultimate success.

In the discussion of the clauses of the proposed Irish Constitution, Parliament is about to cast the mould by which the whole future relationship of Ireland with the country may be shaped. The Government possesses the power to treat their bill, not as a suggestion, but as an edict. If they do they will accept a responsibility of the utmost gravity. Earnest though the labours of the Cabinet Committee may have been, most of its members possessed but little personal experience of the intricate problem which confronted them. Such hope as they may have possessed of discovering a formula of appeasement for Irish hostility has long since vanished. The chaos which prevailed in Ireland has become worse confounded, while the problem of reconciling the Government proposals with the Government administration of that country has scarcely yet been seriously approached. It is, therefore, inconceivable that this bill should represent the last word of British Statecraft. Unfortunately, the forces of Parliamentary opposition have chosen methods of expressing their discontent which will render nugatory their power to secure its improvement. Therefore, such hope as earnest men may still hold of a successful outcome rests upon the Government alone. Most sincerely we trust that they will prove worthy of so great a trust. If in the stress of a national emergency, before which the confidence of none can be free from doubts and misgivings, the Government come frankly to Parliament seeking aid, where aid is forthcoming, and counsel from those best qualified to give it, they will be entitled to, and will receive, the honest sympathy of all who desire a solution of this problem. They may fail in achievement, but, if they do, there will be few to reproach them, and none who can deny that as a Coalition they have endeavoured to speak for a united nation. If, on the contrary, they count a party triumph above the national welfare, and seek no greater aim than to place their bill upon the Statute Book, leaving its fate to the hazard of the future, the measure of their failure will be that of their unqualified opportunity to bring a lasting peace within these islands.

THE POLES AND THE BOLSHEVISTS.

In an editorial article to-day The Times says:—The fall of Kieff is as great a triumph for the Poles and their Ukrainian Allies as it is a heavy blow for the Bolshevists. The city was entered, according to the Russian wireless, on Friday, after heavy fighting during Thursday and that day, and by the latest reports the Russians are in retreat, followed by the Polish cavalry. King George expresses the traditional feelings of the British people when he conveys to Marshal Pilsudski, on the occasion of the Polish National Festival, their "most cordial" congratulation and good wishes for the future of the Polish State. Not on foreign conquests, adds The Times, not on territorial annexations, nor on the domination over unwilling subject races, does the future of Poland depend. She has achieved all these things many times in the past, and to what end did they bring her? Statesmanlike moderation in the treatment of foreign problems, firm union between all parties and sections at home, and that "growth of constitutional liberty" to which Marshal Pilsudski looks forward, are the only sure foundations on which she can rise to her ancient grandeur among the civilised States of Europe. She has a past to obliterate, as well as a past to revive. Periods in her history have given colour to doubts eagerly fostered by her enemies, and reluctantly shared by individual thinkers among her well-wishers, as to the capacity of her brilliant race for sobriety and self-control in the pursuit of their political ends. To dispel all doubts of the kind by exemplary restraint and moderation ought now to be a first object with her whole people. Europe realises that a strong and independent Poland is the pivot of the whole world-settlement contemplated by the Peace. On that ground of self-interest, as well as upon grounds of admiration and of regard, Europe must view with anxiety any enterprise upon her part which might overstrain her strength, as it would view with sorrow and with concern any aspect of her policy which might seem to be inconsistent with the principles of the Peace.

Proceeding to comment upon the uneasiness which the Polish advance is causing among the Bolshevists, as shown by the flood of "wireless" they are lavishing on the world, The Times says—The most interesting of the Russian messages are those which relate to trading with the co-operatives and to the projected visit of a delegation from the League of Nations. Mr. Lloyd George has pledged himself to the hilt to enter into no relations with the Soviet Government and to trade only with the co-operatives. We have always pointed out that the distinction is absurd. The Soviet Government itself confirms us by declaring that the Russian Co-operative Organisation "has now been converted into a Soviet institution." So Soviet has it become that the Government is engaged in purging it of other elements. Certain members of the Centre-Soyuz have been arrested, and will presently be delivered over "to a revolutionary tribunal"—we know what that means. Other members of "the old style co-operative organisations who are now residing abroad"—the very class with whom our Ministers are dealing, and upon whom they bid us rely—have been "relieved of their functions." Among them is M. Berkenheim, of the Russian Co-operative Society in London, who attended at Copenhagen last month, when Mr. E. F. Wise was present on behalf of the Supreme Economic Council to discuss arrangements with the Soviet Trade Commission. In other words, the Russian Government will not tolerate any but a "Red" co-operator, and disavows the co-operators with whom Mr. Lloyd George is pretending to negotiate.

THE PREMIER'S PROBLEM.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times, writing to-day, says:—After Leamington, the next move is clearly with the Coalition Liberals, and they are trying to arrange a public meeting in London this week to enable Sir Gordon Hewart, and the other Ministers, to deliver the speeches which they had prepared for the National Liberal Federation. The Leamington resolution, adds the Correspondent, makes it impossible for Mr. Lloyd George and the old Liberal Party to work together again. This is a much more serious matter for the Coalition Liberals than their Whips would have the public believe. The Leamington resolution virtually cuts them off from the Liberal organisation. It is true that that machine has not been conspicuously successful in the recent series of by-elections, but it is the nucleus of any future Liberal revival, and it has its roots deep in every constituency in the country. Elections cannot be won without an organisation, and the Coalition Liberals are faced with a difficult choice. They can either attempt to create a separate organisation in every constituency, or they can summon the Unionist Party machine to their aid. In both cases the final result would be the same if the present plans of the Coalition leaders are carried out. It is a case either of fusion hereafter or of absorption now. It is understood that the Prime Minister is in favour of the first course, which offers a better chance of making terms with the predominant partner when settlement day comes. It is confidently asserted that the Coalition Liberals have large funds at their disposal, but something more is wanted. A little good-will in the constituencies, for example, would be invaluable. The Coalition Liberals have again been boasting this week-end of their Parliamentary predominance over the Independent section. They have 135 members of the House of Commons as compared with Mr. Asquith's party of 30. But there are 600 constituencies in Great Britain, and no Coalition Liberal stands a chance of nomination in three-fourths of them. A General Election would show up the poverty of the land.

SAN REMO.

STATEMENT BY SIGNOR NITTI.

THE RECONSTRUCTION OF GERMANY.

IMPORTANCE OF THE SPA CONFERENCE.

A Reuter's telegram from Rome on Saturday states—In the Chamber yesterday the debate was taken on the interpellation on the Government's policy.

Signor Nitti urged that one should not discuss the results of the San Remo Conference without considering what had already been accomplished. Every nation in Europe shared in the responsibility of the present position, but no one could doubt that the greater part fell upon Germany. The reconstruction of the vanquished peoples was, however, in the interests of the whole of Europe. Italy believed it desirable to assist in the formation of the Democratic Government in Germany, and to transform that country into a great centre of production. He considered that the Spa Conference would be of great political importance. Germany could put forward offers of indemnity, which they could examine with calmness and impartiality. When Germany applied for artillery and aeroplanes they could not comply, but if she asked for the means of production they must assist her.

THE ADRIATIC QUESTION.

Regarding the Adriatic question, Signor Nitti said that at the sitting of April 26th he declared that it was the intention of the Italian Government to find a settlement. There were only two solutions possible. Either the application of the Pact of London, or the Memorandum of December 9th last, which, however, was full of difficulties. Mr. Lloyd George and M. Millerand informed him that they were always ready to apply the Pact of London, and left Italy to decide whether to ask for it. He asked for a number of modifications of the Memorandum of December 9th in the event of its being applied. He accepted a suggestion, made by the Yugo Slavo delegation, for the opening of friendly negotiations for the purpose of reaching a direct agreement, considering that he would be safeguarding the country's honour and interests, and negotiations would be begun in a few days. He hoped that they would prove successful, but, in the event of that not being so, Italy had the adhesion of Great Britain and France to the Pact of London, and of Great Britain, France and America to the Memorandum of December 9th last.

THE GERMAN ATTITUDE AT SPA.

The Berlin Tageblatt on Saturday published an officially inspired statement, apparently indicating the line that the German representatives will adopt at the Spa Conference concerning the contributions already made by Germany to the Entente. The Saar coal mines, the statement says, represent at least one thousand million marks. Then comes State prosperity in the ceded territories, seven thousand million marks; material for the work of restoration, animals, machinery, dyes, coal, German cables, etc., two thousand five hundred million marks, and German merchant shipping, another eight thousand two hundred and fifty million marks. The list further mentions the amount derived from the liquidation of German concerns abroad; Austria Hungary's, Turkey's, and Bulgaria's debts to Germany, which amount nominally to seven thousand million marks, and finally the Customs dues and taxes of the occupied territories, retained by the Entente.

THE GERMAN ARMY.

According to a telegram from Berlin yesterday, an official statement issued there announces that the reduction of the German Army to two hundred thousand men will have been completed by May 15th, and that by that date also those officers will have been discharged who are not required for the provisional administrative purposes of the Transitional Army.

LENIN AND POLAND.

"TO BE DELIVERED FROM HER OPPRESSORS."

RUMANIANS TO JOIN THE POLES.

The Paris Matin says—A wireless message has been transmitted from Moscow announcing in glowing terms that the whole of Russia is rising to fight Poland. On May 6th the majority of the Moscow garrison of 120,000 men left the Soviet capital for the Dnieper front. Lenin and Trotsky addressed the troops. Lenin said:—"We do not want to fight Poland, but we are going to deliver her from oppressors. 'Death to Polish landlords!' 'Long live the Polish Workers' and Peasants' Republic!'"

Another message states—General Brussiloff has been appointed Supreme President of the War Council and the Soviet armies.

MILITARY ACTIVITY IN RUMANIA.

A Reuter's telegram from Copenhagen on Sunday says—The Politiken publishes a report from Budapest, via Berlin, stating that feverish military preparations are proceeding in Rumania. The Berlin newspapers also report, according to the Berlinske Tidende, that M. Averescu, the Rumanian Premier, has gone to Warsaw to negotiate with General Pilsudski, President of Poland, for the conclusion of an alliance against Russia.

THE FALL OF KIEFF.

A Times telegram from Warsaw, dated May 8, says—The fall of Kieff is officially announced here to-day. The town was occupied by Polish cavalry, who have been relieved by Ukrainian infantry. All the Bolshevist officials have fled, and the cavalry are pushing eastward in pursuit of the retreating Bolshevist forces.

THE REVOLT IN MEXICO.

REPORTED FLIGHT OF CARRANZA.

A Reuter's telegram from Washington on Saturday states:—A force of 1,200 Marines has been ordered to Key West, Florida, in view of possible service in Mexico.

The Mexican Revolutionists announce that various garrisons have joined in the revolt. It is reported that General Villa is near Chihuahua, and has declared a truce with the rebels with the object of joining forces with them.

All telegraph and railway communication between the United States border and Mexico City has been severed.

CARRANZA IN FLIGHT.

A New York telegram on Saturday states:—A message from El Paso says that, according to an unconfirmed report, the Revolutionists have taken Mexico City, and that President Carranza has fled to Vera Cruz.

A Reuter's telegram from Laredo, Texas, on Saturday, says:—The Mexican rebels have cut the national railway and also the telegraph lines, 60 miles south of the border.

THE FRENCH RAILWAY STRIKE.

LABOUR'S CALL FOR AN EXTENSION.

A Reuter's telegram from Paris on Saturday states:—The Executive of the Confederation of Labour has invited the Unions of Metal-Workers and Building Trades, employees, workers on the Metropolitan and Nord-Sud Railways and the ports and docks' hands to join in the strike movement on Monday, in solidarity with the railwaymen. On the P. L. Line the situation is very satisfactory. On the Nord the situation is unchanged. The strike has come to an end in the Hellemz (?) workshops, and has practically ended in the workshops at Amiens. A very great improvement is reported at La Chapelle. On the Paris-Orleans line the situation continues satisfactory. Two hundred men returned to work to-day.

The Secretary of the Union of the men employed on the Paris Underground Railways has issued a statement asking the men on the Metropolitan and Nord Sud lines to stop work on Monday morning in conformity with the decisions taken by the General Confederation of Labour and the Federation of Transport Workers. The Federation of Ports and Docks has also issued a call to their men to cease work as from Monday.

A Toulon telegram says that the workers in the Army arsenal have rejected almost unanimously the proposal for a strike.

ATTACKS ON POLICE BARRACKS.

FIERCE FIGHTS IN CORK AND ARMAGH.

SPLENDID POLICE RESISTANCE.

CONSTABLE WOUNDED AT CLOYNE.

TWO RAIDERS REPORTED KILLED.

FATAL SEQUEL TO RUSH ATTACK.

Our Cork Correspondent telegraphs:—A desperate battle took place in the early hours of Sunday morning, when the Cloyne Police Station (about twelve miles from Cork City) was attacked by raiders. The police made a splendid defence, and the battle ended only when the building was burned over the heads of the garrison, one of their number shot through the head, and three of the raiders wounded, two it is believed mortally.

Shortly after midnight a party of about 200 men, armed with revolvers, rifles, shot guns, and bombs expelled the occupants of houses adjoining the police barracks, having previously isolated the village by cutting the telegraph and telephone wires, and made the adjoining roads impassable by felling trees across them.

In the first fusilade the windows of the barrack were shattered, and the defenders promptly replied with rifles and hand grenades. The raiders next placed gelignite in part of the wall, and a terrific explosion made a large aperture, exposing the kitchen of the barracks, which was being defended by Constable Dunn. The raiders tried to enter by this means, but were again and again repelled by its brave defender; while the other occupants kept up a steady fire on the enemy.

The attackers next reached the roof of the barracks, and, pouring oil upon it, set it alight, and forced the garrison to move down to the ground floor, where they still fought, but at 2 a.m. the fire had eaten its way down to them, and they were forced to surrender. They were then deprived of their arms and accoutrements. Prior to this Constable Dunn was seriously wounded by a bullet in the head, and now lies in a critical state in the Cork Military Hospital, whither he was removed on Sunday morning by motor.

Three raiders were seen being removed wounded, two, it is stated, mortally. The houses adjoining the barracks were also involved in the flames.

Later accounts of the attack show that the raiders secured only one rifle, as the garrison, before surrendering the place, stored the other rifles, revolvers, grenades, and ammunition in an upper room, and they were destroyed when the fire reached them. The explosion was of an extremely violent character.

The garrison, consisting of Sergeant Grace and Constables Dunne, Boland, Bartley, Connaughton, and O'Donoghoe, were marched a distance of half a mile outside the town, when the leader of the attacking party, addressing them, said, "We will not shoot you." The police were then set at liberty, and permitted to return without molestation to the town, where they were soon after joined by a party of military and police which arrived from Cork.

County Inspector Craig and District Inspectors Yates, Murphy, and Heggart visited the scene of the outrage during the day.

In addition to the house on either side of the barrack being destroyed, the Post Office, which was second next door, was seriously damaged by the fire.

THE ATTACK ON RUSH BARRACKS.

DEATH OF WOUNDED SERGEANT.

Sergeant Brady, R.I.C., who received severe bullet wounds in both legs on the occasion of the attack on Rush Police Barrack on Thursday morning, 29th April, succumbed to his injuries in Steevens's Hospital shortly after ten o'clock last night. Sergeant Brady was a native of Bray and was married.

M'CORMACK LINER RAIDED FOR ARMS.

At an early hour on Sunday morning a party of armed men boarded the steamship The Ashmoo, of the Moore McCormack Line, from New York with cargo for the Ford Works, as she lay at the company's wharf in Cork in search of arms said to be on the ship. Their visit caused consternation on board. They failed to find any arms, and left without doing any damage. The captain telephoned for the police, and a large force arrived, but the raiders had then gone.

MAILS ROBBED NEAR THURLES.

Our Thurles Correspondent telegraphs:—Armed and masked men held up the Nenagh mail car near Thurles on Saturday night. The driver was covered with revolvers, while the contents of the eleven mail sacks which the car carried were rifled. It was not quite dark at the time. Each sack was ripped with knives. No registered letters nor money were touched. The raiders said they were not robbers, and were in quest of official letters. Having warned the driver not to move for a quarter of an hour after their departure, they left with a bundle of captured letters. No trace of the raiders has yet been found, though the police are extremely active in the district.

WIRELESS INSTALLATION IN LISTOWEL BARRACKS.

Naval mechanics have installed a wireless apparatus in the Listowel Police Barrack, a pole having been erected on the roof.

THREATENING LETTER TO KERRY PRIEST.

Rev. Father Curtayne, C.C., Ballybunion, on Friday received the following letter, which bears the Tralee post mark, and was collected on May 6th:—

"Take Notice—We, the Black Hand, have come to avenge all murders in Ireland, and to give you notice to prepare to meet your God, in Whose sight all priests are murderers who encourage and incite murder and crime in those who know no better, and who, instead of preaching love and charity, preach shooting is no murder, and those you will have to answer for before your God. Beware; you are a marked man, and your time may be short."

Father Curtayne is a curate in Ballybunion, where he is very popular. He is an ardent follower of the Sinn Fein policy and a fluent Irish speaker. He has, our correspondent states, always denounced crime in every form.

CLAIMS FOR BURNING OF TYRONE BARRACKS.

Claims amounting to £4,500 were lodged with the Omagh Rural Council on Saturday in connection with the alleged malicious burning of the police barracks at Gortin and Mountfield. The principal claimants were Sir Lionel M'Mahon, Bart.; Mrs. Sarah M'Cullagh, and the Inspector-General, Royal Irish Constabulary.

RESIDENT MAGISTRATE'S TRIBUTE TO R.I.C.

Writing to the Ennis Bench in acknowledgment of a resolution of regret at his departure from Clare, Mr. George M'Elroy, R.M., said that the more he knew of the Royal Irish Constabulary in Clare the greater became his respect for them—their intelligence, loyalty, and good conduct. He never knew one of them to be guilty of a mean act. They were good Irishmen and good Christians, and why the murders of their members by cruel assassins should be regarded with approval, or at best with indifference, by so many people in this Christian nation was a problem that puzzled him and thousands of other good Irishmen, North and South. The sooner that this hellish practice stopped the better it would be for Ireland.

WARNING TO POLICE FUEL CONTRACTOR.

The contractor for supplying fuel to the police barracks at Tuisk has been warned at his peril not to convey further supplies.

THE COLLECTION OF IRISH INCOME TAX.

DAIL EIREANN'S INSTRUCTIONS TO LISTOWEL COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Listowel Urban District Council, the Chairman (Dr. O'Connor) said that he had received a notice from Dail Eireann, which he read for the Council, to the effect that no more extracts from the Council's books were to be sent to the British Surveyor of Taxes, or any information whatever given.

The Council made an order accordingly.

The Clerk produced a form which had just been filled up to be sent to the surveyor in Tralee, but the Council cancelled it.

NEWTOWNHAMILTON ATTACK.

POLICE FORCED FROM BURNING BUILDING.

DEFENCE MAINTAINED FOR FOUR HOURS.

RAIDERS ULTIMATELY DEFEATED.

Our Armagh Correspondent telegraphs—On Sunday morning a sensation was caused in the peaceful little town of Newtownhamilton by a fierce attack which was made on the police barracks. About 12.30 o'clock the raiders, estimated at three hundred, suddenly arrived in Newtownhamilton, and taking up a position in vacated premises, the property of Mr. Starr, auctioneer and Petty Sessions Clerk, right opposite the police barracks, began a vigorous attack on the barracks, which were in charge of Sergeant Trainor, and Constables Small, McWhirter, Doyle, Forster, and Gray.

Some short time ago an unsuccessful raid was made on the barracks, with the result that every precaution had been taken in the way of barbed wire entanglements, iron barred and sandbagged windows. The first intimation the police had was a volley of bombs on the roof, which was followed by a tremendous rifle fire. The police responded with an equally vigorous fire.

The attackers then entered the adjoining licensed premises of Patrick McManus, a retired policeman, and seized the proprietor, bound him with ropes, and conveyed him to an out-office outside the danger zone. They then proceeded to bore a number of holes through McManus's wall, from which they bombed the barracks with gelignite. They then entered through the breach in the wall, and forced the police back.

At this stage the police retired to the rear of the buildings, from which they withstood the terrific siege for a considerable time. The fight had lasted for over four hours, and the leader of the attacking crowd through a megaphone called on the police to surrender. Sergeant Trainor shouted "Never," and the police replied with another fusillade.

With potato sprayers the attacking party sprayed the front of the premises with petrol and paraffin, and then set fire to the premises, which were soon a mass of flame. It was only when the roof was about to collapse that the police retired to the rear of the building.

Strange to say, in all the firing from both sides there was no casualty, so far as is known Constable Forster had a narrow escape, a bullet perforating his great coat at the right shoulder.

The barracks has been reduced to a heap of ruins, nothing being left standing but a few walls. Sergeant Trainor's furniture, with the exception of a few articles, has been completely demolished. The premises directly opposite the barracks were very much damaged by the firing, and the premises of Mr. M'Manus adjoining the barracks have been seriously injured, the side wall next the barracks being demolished with the force of the explosions.

All the roads leading into the town were barricaded with timber, gates, and stones. The telegraphic and telephonic communication were completely cut off, and during the attack a number of the raiders kept up a continuous fusillade of rifle fire in all the streets of the town, to the great terror of the inhabitants. The side wall of the Ulster Bank, which is immediately next the barracks, was considerably damaged.

About 5 o'clock the attacking party melted away as mysteriously as it came. During Sunday Newtownhamilton, otherwise one of the quietest little towns in Ulster, was the scene of tremendous excitement and great military and police activity.

Our Newry Correspondent, referring to the attack at Newtownhamilton, says:—It is stated that a wounded raider was seen being carried away, and that traces of blood were subsequently discovered on the Dundalk road. By what method the raiders arrived is not known.

MAN SHOT IN DERRY.

During a row following a football match in Derry on Saturday evening shots were fired, and a man named McDonald received a bullet wound in the leg.

DUBLIN DETECTIVE SHOT.

DASTARDLY DAYLIGHT OUTRAGE.

MISCREANTS ESCAPE.

CONSTABLE'S FUTILE CHASE.

Another shooting outrage was added early on Saturday forenoon to the long series which has sullied the reputation of the City of Dublin during the past ten months, a deliberate attempt being made to assassinate a detective sergeant of the Dublin Metropolitan Police. The victim of the outrage is Sergeant Richard J. Revell, a man of about 42 years of age, with 25 years police service. He is a married man, and lives at No. 10 Connaught street, off Phibsborough road. For the past six years Sergeant Revell has been employed exclusively on clerical work in the head office of the detective department at Dublin Castle. He has not during that period done any outside work whatever, and, therefore, could not have come into personal contact with any of the more dangerous elements which have, during the past four years, been disturbing the political life of the country. He had regular office hours, and it was his custom to cycle to and from his work at Dublin Castle every day. With that object he left his house in Connaught street a few minutes before 9.30 a.m. on Saturday. He rode down into Phibsborough road, and had cycled about 100 yards along that thoroughfare when a series of pistol shots was fired at him in rapid succession. Residents in the locality, hearing the explosions, rushed to their windows and doors, and their accounts of what they saw vary considerably in detail as is, perhaps, natural in the excitement of the incident and the rapidity with which it was enacted. The exact scene of the shooting is about 100 yards from Doyle's corner, and nearly opposite the Bohemian Picture Theatre. Some of those who happened to be near the scene state that they saw Sergeant Revell cycling along the roadway towards the city, when three men suddenly stepped out from the footpath on to the tram lines, pulled out firearms, and fired at the unfortunate man at point blank range. Some four or five shots were fired in rapid succession. Sergeant Revell's bicycle swerved towards the footpath on the right hand side, and he collapsed, falling heavily, head first, on the pavement at the edge of the kerbstone. He made a convulsive effort as though to rise, and then his body straightened out, and he lay still upon his back. Blood was gushing from a wound in his neck. In the meantime several women who were in the vicinity went to the aid of the wounded man. Some of them unfastened his collar and shirt, and sought to staunch the blood that was flowing from the wound in his neck. Sergeant Revell whose courage and fortitude were remarkable, said to his helpers: "Send for my wife—Connaught street." A lady who knew him, and who was acquainted with Mrs. Revell, immediately complied with the request, and went to Connaught street, where she found the sergeant's wife standing at her own doorway, having been alarmed by the exploding of the shots. In the meantime another of the women who had gone to the aid of the wounded man asked him if she would summon a priest. Sergeant Revell explained that he was a Protestant. Some other persons, unaware of this fact, called a priest. Rev. Father Comerford, of St. Peter's, Phibsborough, arrived at the spot a few minutes later, but it was explained to him that the injured man did not belong to his church, and he withdrew. The Corporation ambulance was telephoned for from a victualler's shop near by, and promptly proceeded to the scene. In the meantime Mrs. Revell went down to Phibsborough road, and found her husband, lying bleeding upon the roadway. She knelt down upon the street beside him, and took his head in her arms, and remained there with him until the ambulance arrived. He asked the ambulance men to take him to the Adelaide Hospital, and they complied with his request, his wife accompanying him in the vehicle. The scene was a very painful one, and many of the onlookers were deeply touched, while moved to admiration by the calmness of the injured man. He conversed with those about him, and, in reply to a question, said that he could identify one of his assailants.

ASSAILANTS ESCAPE.

In the meantime the assailants had made good their escape. A lady, residing close to the scene of the outrage, described how she was at her door when she heard some four shots fired in rapid succession. Before the firing ceased she saw a man fall from his bicycle on to the edge of the footpath. He made an attempt to rise, but was unable to do so. Then she saw two very tall men running in the direction of the Cross Guns Bridge. Immediately afterwards she saw a uniformed policeman, who was on duty at Doyle's corner, running past with a revolver in his hand, shouting "Stop those men." No one, however, attempted to stop them, and the constable, who was hampered by his overcoat, was rapidly outdistanced by the assassins, who made their escape in the direction of Glasnevin.

A little girl, who happened to be looking out of the window of her home, told a somewhat similar story of seeing a man cycling along the street towards the city, hearing four or five shots fired rapidly, seeing the cyclist fall on his back on the footpath and a crowd gather about him, and someone bring him a glass of water. She did not see anyone on the street when the shots were fired, but thought that they came from the Glasnevin side of the street. A lady described how she was in her kitchen when she heard the shooting. She ran to her garden gate, and saw a girl get off her bicycle on the roadway and a man lying on the footpath huddled up. She ran back and called her husband, who came out and gave the wounded man a drink of water and a little whiskey. The wounded man was able to talk, and told them that he was Sergeant Revell, and lived in Connaught street, and someone went for his wife. He said that he could identify one of the men who shot him. He was covered with blood from a wound in his neck, and seemed to have other wounds as well.

"STOP THE MURDERERS."

The spot where Sergeant Revell fell was outside the garden gate of No. 78 Phibsborough road, and a Miss Flynn, who lives in the house, stated that when she heard the shots she went out. On reaching the gate she saw a uniformed policeman running towards the Cross Guns Bridge, and a man lying on the footpath, with a bicycle beside him. A number of people went to his aid, and she, being frightened, returned to the house. Another lady described how she recognised Sergeant Revell, and at once ran to tell his wife, whom she found standing outside her own door. Mrs. Revell ran down, and was beside her husband till the ambulance came.

A young man, who was cycling from Glasnevin to business in the city, related how he heard the shots, and saw Sergeant Revell collapse and fall, head foremost, to the ground. Some women who were passing ran to his assistance. The shots appeared to come from persons on the footway from the Glasnevin side of the Bohemian Picture Theatre. He saw about four or five men—ordinary looking men, and fairly well dressed—running along towards the Cross Guns Bridge from the scene of the shooting. Some of these men had revolvers. The police constable on point duty at Doyle's corner ran up, and paused for a moment to look at the wounded man, whom he apparently recognised. The constable had a revolver in his hand, and then ran in pursuit of the four or five men towards Glasnevin, shouting "Stop the murderers." He failed to overtake the men, and did not fire his revolver. When the policeman reached the Cross Guns Bridge the men had apparently got out of sight, for he returned to where the wounded man lay, and put his revolver back in the holster.

When he was taken to the Adelaide Hospital it was found, on examination by the surgeons, that Sergeant Revell had a bullet wound in the neck, under the left ear, while there were two bullet wounds in the left arm, which was fractured, and a fourth bullet was lodged in the leg. All the bullets appeared to have been fired from behind. It is stated that the sergeant was armed with an automatic pistol, but, of course, in the circumstances, he was unable to return the fire. Shortly after his admission to hospital an operation was performed, and it was subsequently stated that the patient was making favourable progress, and that his life was not considered to be in danger.

It was learned on inquiry at the Adelaide Hospital this morning that Sergeant Revell is progressing favourably, and is now out of danger.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

ANTI-BRITISH PROPAGANDA.

In a letter to the Morning Post Sir E. Carson gives the following extract from a letter which he has received from Sydney on the subject of anti-British propaganda:—

"The British nation is absolutely a child where propaganda is concerned. Because it believes in giving a square deal to everybody else and in upright conduct, therefore, it thinks that in the end, no matter what propaganda is used by its enemies, the world will come to see Britain's justice and integrity. This is again a great mistake, and a nation like the British cannot afford such mistakes with such an absolutely relentless foe as Germany. They are too dangerous. The world can be converted to any opinion, good or bad, provided the necessary money is available for propaganda."

Sir E. Carson adds:—I have been continually driving these truths into British ears for the last three years, and yet, when I ask for assistance in my campaign, a vitally important one—a campaign which the British should undertake now, unless they want to see their Empire broken by foreign propaganda from within—I am met with the usual lukewarm answer: "I am too busy to interest myself in this." I have had hundreds of letters from America complaining of the folly of the British Government in making no effort to counteract the anti-British propaganda carried on there on a huge and systematic scale. New York is the headquarters of propaganda to create ill-will and an anti-British feeling not only in America, but in India and Egypt, and yet the British Government is apparently convinced that a policy of taciturnity is, at the same time, the most dignified and efficient one!

THE LIBERAL PARTY.

The Morning Post says:—We may, perhaps, be pardoned if we do not manifest any excessive emotion concerning the dreadful internecine quarrel raging in the Liberal Party. It appears that the Coalition Liberals have now been excommunicated by the Independent Liberals. Before the war the Liberal policy, whatever it might have been in theory, in practice weakened the defences of the Empire, and let it drift into war unprepared. The Liberal Government were responsible for bringing Ireland to the edge of civil war, and for the acquiescence in sedition, of which we see the consequences in Ireland to-day. During the war there were fatal vacillation and indecision, and an inherent timidity which was invariably to the advantage of the enemy. The English are the most easy-going people in the world, but their patience has its limits and their memory is longer than the politicians imagine. We are now told with profound solemnity that Liberalism and its lofty ideals have a great and a noble future. We have a curious impression that the Liberal Party is going the way of all flesh. If we were asked to prescribe for the patient we should suggest trying a little honesty.

THE COAL INCREASE.

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent writes:—It is reported that the price of household coal will be increased by from 14s. to 14s. 3d. a ton, and industrial coal from 4s. to 4s. 3d. a ton. The difference is made up by the 10s. reduction on household coal made last winter.

TURKISH NATIONALISTS AND THE SOVIET.

A Times telegram, dated Teheran, May 7th, says:—The Tiflis newspapers lately published the text of a Military Convention, which is said to have been concluded between the Soviet Government of Russia and Mustafa Kemal's Turkish Nationalist organisation. The Convention consists of ten articles. The Nationalist forces refuse adherence to any Allied terms involving diminished Turkish sovereignty. The territory of Constantinople is to be Turkish, the Straits free, the fortifications of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus are to be destroyed, and Soviet Russia is to give moral and material aid to Turkey if the latter is obliged to defend herself against the Allies. Russia is to support the independence and self-determination of Mussulman countries. The Mussulman signatories of the present Convention pledge themselves to introduce in their respective countries the same régime as is established in Soviet Russia. The present Convention is to be confirmed by the Ottoman Government and the Sultan, its duration to be twenty years, and the Republic of Azerbaijan is to be a party.

FALL OF MEXICO CITY CONFIRMED.

A Washington telegram on Sunday says:—Advices to the State Department from Vera Cruz say that, according to a wireless message from Mexico City, President Carranza has fled, and General Obregon is in complete possession of the city.

NEWSPRINT SHORTAGE.

Telegraphing on Sunday, the Daily Mail New York Correspondent says:—Mr. Cortland Smith, President of the American Press Association, has requested the Senate Committee which is investigating the newsprint shortage to vote £50,000 to conduct experiments towards the discovery of a suitable substitute for wood pulp. "I believe," he said, "it is the duty of Congress to take drastic action of some sort. The country Press is fighting with its back to the wall, and, unless relief is given soon, it is a virtual certainty that many papers will have to discontinue. Less than half the country Press will be able to survive unless there is a change in the situation."

GERMANY'S REVIVAL OF TRADE.

BUSINESS RELATIONS WITH GREAT BRITAIN.

PARIS, MAY 8.

French merchants who are endeavouring to buy goods across the Rhine seem to be coming to the conclusion that Great Britain has far outdistanced her neighbours in the resumption of business relations with Germany. In the great majority of cases German manufacturers reply to prospective French purchasers that their production and plant are tied up for a long time to come by contracts with British customers. Investigation based on these reports shows that the British are exporting great quantities of raw materials to Germany, for which they are asking no payment in money, but they are taking manufactured articles in exchange. Germany is now getting her iron largely from Sweden under similar arrangements, thus making herself almost independent of France for raw materials. Germany, having at the same time re-opened a big outlet for manufacturers elsewhere, is also independent to a great extent as to her selling market, while France is anxious to get from her coal and agricultural implements which French merchants can no longer buy in the United States without suffering an immense disadvantage due to the unfavourable exchange.

The belief is expressed in competent circles here that Germany is seeking to use this economic situation to bring pressure on France with a view to obtaining concessions in the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. The little export business that France has been able to do with Germany has been transacted under the greatest difficulties. German buyers meeting with all sorts of obstructions in obtaining export licences for French goods.

The situation resulting from all these circumstances will be one of the first subjects raised at the approaching Franco-German Conference in Paris. The French delegates will ask the Germans to show what they can do in the way of reciprocity before seriously considering German participation in the restoration of Northern France, a plan for which, it is thought, will be presented by the German delegates.

THE LATE CROWN PRINCESS OF SWEDEN.

HER LAST WISHES.

A Reuter's telegram from Stockholm says:—On Saturday night the Stockholm students rendered the last homage to the Crown Princess by singing outside the windows of the Castle where she is now sleeping her last sleep.

Since the King returned from the Riviera the document containing the late Crown Princess's last wishes has been opened. It was written in 1914, and prescribes in detail in the most simple and considerate way her wishes with regard to the funeral ceremonies. The Princess wished that her body should be covered with her bridal veil until the coffin was closed, and that her shroud should be made from her wedding dress. She also asked that a crucifix should be placed in her hands, and that the coffin should be a simple oak one of English design, covered with the Swedish and British flags during the funeral ceremony. The Princess desired that there should be no lying-in-state, and that her Orders and decorations should not be exhibited. Tall lighted wax candles and a large cross of flowers were to be placed at the head of the coffin, the flowers preferably being lilies of all kinds, including Calla lilies. She expressed a wish for "the least possible grief," and said that if her children were at the time of her death still young they were to be dressed in white at the funeral. She asked for as much music as possible, "not slow and melancholy hymns." She wished not to be buried in Riddarholm Church, but out, in the open country.

CUNARD STEAMER'S CALL TO QUEENSTOWN.

For the first time during a period of five years and eight months, a Cunard steamer called at Queenstown on Saturday to embark mails and passengers for New York.

ELYSIAN FIELDS.

THE TULIPS AT RUSH.

HOLLAND IN IRELAND.

(BY C. H. B.)

If I had been told, without the addition of any illuminating particulars, that there was a place not twenty miles from Dublin that merited the title "Holland in Ireland"—or for that matter that there was a place between the Scheldt and the Zuyder Zee called "Ireland in Holland"—I should have smiled derisively. The suggestion that the mercurial, emotion-loving, unstable Dutchman could possibly have anything in common with the stolid, unimaginative, and thrifty Irishman would have seemed merely amusing. Of course, when my informant mentioned tulips a great light broke upon me. One could scarcely think of a flower more likely to invoke the affectionate admiration of the Celt. Sturdy, upright, unsentimental, self-reliant almost to the point of self-assertion, the tulip dominates every situation in which it is placed. One cannot imagine the tulip having a grievance or remaining the under dog. If you were to plant a single magenta McOwen or deep red Marcella among a whole bed of sky blue delphiniums, the delphiniums, and not the tulip, would at once become conscious that they were intruding.

The tulip has neither nuances nor reserves. Conscious of its solid worth, of its ability to paint the map one or other of the many delightful shades of red, it cries out like Yum Yum in the "Mikado": "O pray make no mistake, we are not shy. We really know our worth, the sun and I." But, if inclining as an individual to a certain dogmatism—even to truculence—in the disciplined mass, the effective aggregate, the tulip is positively unequalled. As a single bloom it may have limitations; in the orderly array of the parterre it produces an effect that the most undisciplined eye cannot ignore. And seen as it can be seen at Rush, on a two-acre parade ground, in companies and battalions and regiments, dressed by the right and in uniforms of every imaginable shade, from deepest plum to palest mauve, from black bronze to clearest dawn pink, the tulip can be a thing of wonder, impossible to paint or describe.

The tulip, as I think I have made it clear, has every quality that an Irishman might be expected to appreciate. It seems only natural, therefore, that Ireland should have provided a spot where the tulip can be cultivated under conditions, nearly as ideal as those enjoyed by the great bulb growers of Haarlem and Alkmaar. I have never seen the Dutch bulb farms in bloom, but I am assured, and can well believe, that they surpass the Elysian fields of Rush in size, perhaps, but not in beauty. There is just this difference. Every good Haarlemite, as a matter of course, takes an afternoon off in the spring to go and feast his imaginative eye upon the gorgeous mosaic of the bulb fields in bloom. Not one Dublinite in a thousand thinks of visiting Rush for the same purpose, or would do so if the tulip fields stretched from Lusk to Drogheda, and only bloomed once in a thousand years. Visitors the farm has in thousands, and from all part of the Kingdom, mostly on business bent. But the thousands that in any other country would pour forth from the city at the appointed season simply to charm their eyes and lighten their hearts with the spectacle of beauty are conspicuous by their absence.

The bulb farm at Rush owes its existence to the enterprise of Messrs. Hogg and Robertson, and I hope I shall not disappoint Mr. Robertson, who chaperoned me in person through his flowery kingdom, or his grand vizier, Mr. Callahan, when I say that to describe what I saw there is simply beyond me. I think the firm list something like eight hundred varieties of tulips, and in one field alone that I was shown there were more than sixty varieties in bloom. I need hardly say that they were not growing there just to be looked at by visiting journalists. In a week or so every tulip that I saw will have been picked, packed seventy-two dozen in a box, and sent off by rail, mostly to the English markets. But the sale of the cut flowers is only a secondary and comparatively insignificant part of the bulb farmer's business. His main interest is the propagation and sale of the bulbs.

It is on this account that Rush, with its sandy soil and comparatively dry climate, is so well suited to the business. If the cut flowers were all-important, the bulbs would be grown in a heavier soil and a more sheltered locality. In the light, friable soil the tulip does not reach its zenith of size and strength, but it multiplies exceedingly. I have mentioned tulips only, but other bulbs are also to be seen at Rush—narcissi and gladiolus and anemones. A field of anemones—they are at their best now—is quite as beautiful, though in a different way, as a field of tulips. I noted the names of some of the tulips that seemed to me to surpass their fellows in grace and elegance, but unfortunately the list has got mislaid. Out of eight hundred varieties the casual visitor may pick his own fancy. To offer it to others who are likely to see things quite differently would be merely an affectation of superior knowledge. I must say, however, that the naming of tulips leaves much to be desired, and has obviously been left to the mercy of the unimaginative. I do not know if there is a Tulip Growers' Association, but, if there is, they should hire some intelligent young poet or journalist to think up names for their fancied seedlings. Think of calling a magnificent glowing pink bowl of loveliness poised on a two-foot column of green grace "Mrs. Cleveland" or "Clara Butt" or "Mahoney"! How much nicer to call them "Dawn over Damascus" or "Red Hanrahan" or "Twilight on Sandy Row."

There is something else to be said for the tulip farm besides praise of the gorgeous spectacle that it offers in the spring. I do not know if the industry is a very profitable one. The demand for bulbs is a hundredfold greater than Rush is able to supply, and the opportunities for expansion are unlimited; but the Dutchman is a hard man to beat at his own game, even when not assisted by discriminatory freight rates and the sacred principles of Free Trade. But whether or no the future of the bulb industry is bright with the promise of a golden harvest for those that pursue it, it is certain that no form of agriculture pays out more in regular wages or casual employment to the community at large. As might be expected from that condition of things, the little village of Rush is seething with prosperity and contentment—so much so that certain persons recently sent an army to attack the Rush Police Barracks, and thus create a wholly false impression of unrest in those parts. The inhabitants of Rush may be, for all I know, stalwart Republicans to a man. If so, they quite clearly want a republic fit for bulb farmers to live in. Personally, the economic aspect of the matter interests me but slightly. But I hope that Messrs. Hogg and Robertson will continue to make Rush a "Holland in Ireland," and that others will follow suit until Ireland is the bulb market of the world. Others can enjoy the profits. I ask only the modest pleasure of an annual pilgrimage, when May is crowning the gardens with laburnum and the hedges with hawthorn, to that many-hued pageant of beauty, the tulip fields in bloom.

THE AMERICA CUP.

THE SHAMROCK'S CHANCES.

Among the passengers on the Cunarder Mauretania, which left Southampton on Saturday for New York, was Mr. C. E. Nicholson, the designer of the Shamrock IV. Questioned regarding her chances, he said:—It is all a delightful gamble. That is what makes it so interesting. The two boats are so different in every way that there is no knowing what may happen.

SOUTH AFRICAN MINES CLOSING.

A telegram from Johannesburg on Saturday says:—The Simmer Deep and Jupiter Mines are closing down. The employés are organising a protest.

At the present moment there are stored in the United Kingdom and Australasia and in transit 400,000 tons of Colonial meat, all owned by the British Government.

THE LAND HUNGER.

SCENE AT ROSCOMMON DRIVE.

SURRENDERS AND "SETTLEMENTS."

The agitation against the Roscommon graziers is being maintained with increasing vigour. On Saturday Mr. Cotton, whose land at Carnakit, Grange, and other places have been driven several times, met a deputation at Rathmoyle, and offered to give his farms next October, but would not agree to surrender them at present. These terms would not be agreed to by the deputation, who requested that he should hand over the lands immediately. Mr. Cotton was pulled out of his motor, and roughly handled. He was told to mark the consequence if he continued to hold out. The crowd then invaded his farms at Carnakit, drove all the stock out on the road, and compelled the herd to drive them to the owner's residence, and not take them back there again.

An effort was made by one of the Congested Districts Board officers to take in grazing stock on lands at Clogher, near Elphin, on Friday. Over 50 cattle were taken in; but this was no sooner accomplished than bugles were blown on all sides, and men came trooping to the scene of operation. They rounded up the cattle on the lands, set dogs at them, and rushed them out across the country, clearing the obstacles as they met them, and thus scattered them in all directions. The stockmaster and the owners beat a hasty retreat.

SINN FEIN "VICTORIES" IN CASTLEREA.

Several of the graziers, from whose lands in Castlerea stock have been driven during the past fortnight, met a deputation of landless men by appointment on Saturday, and, as the result of private negotiations, signed agreements for the surrender of their lands by arbitration. In the meantime, the parties to whom the lands have been surrendered, are now empowered to take grazing stock for the summer six months.

It is claimed that the "surrender" of these farms is the first sign of the termination of the land war in this part of the West.

AGITATION AGAINST CO. GALWAY FARMERS' COMMITTEE.

Our Roscommon Correspondent states:—Early on Saturday morning a military waggon, with armed soldiers and police, arrested 11 farmers and farmers' sons belonging to the Ballyforan, (Co. Galway) district, for having on three occasions in the past month cleared the stock off the farms of Breda and Carrowkeel, belonging to the Ballyforan and Dysart Farming Committee.

The accused were subsequently brought before Mr. Russell, R.M., at Roscommon, and charged with unlawful assembly.

One of the accused (Martin McDonnell) stated that not one of the men arrested wanted a perch of these farms. They drove the lands as a protest against the action of the few men who formed the Committee, and who, 16 years ago, purchased them for the benefit of the poor people, and instead were now holding on to them for their own benefit.

His Worship remanded the accused, on their own recognisances, till next Petty Sessions.

DEFIANT CO. GALWAY DRIVERS.

RESIDENT MAGISTRATE AND COERCION.

At a Crimes Court held in Ballinasloe on Saturday, before Mr. J. Byrne, R.M., and Mr. C. E. Armstrong, R.M., John Egan, Michael Hanlon, Thomas Frehill, Thomas Curley, and John Kilkenny, Kiltormer, were charged with unlawful assembly and driving cattle off a farm at Kill, the property of Mr. James Cooke, Cornfield. One of the defendants, Curley, said that they were living in bogs and would have to get the land.

Mr. Byrne—Those men have called the tune and must pay the piper. They must go to jail for two months, and are bound to the peace for twelve months, or, in default, a further three months' imprisonment.

An appeal was lodged.

Patrick Curley, John Shiel, and Joseph Staunton, Lawrencetown, were charged with unlawful assembly and driving stock belonging to Mr. Cooke off the farm at Belview.

Mr. Conroy, solicitor (for the defendants), stated that Mr. Cooke had now given over this land, and he (Mr. Conroy) would give an undertaking that there would be no more interference. Mr. Cooke was delighted with the way in which the case had been settled, as it was in the interests of the peace of the district.

Mr. Byrne—I don't know about the peace of the district—that has gone long ago. (Laughter.) Mr. Cooke was coerced into giving up this land. The defendants would have to go to jail for fourteen days, and be bound to the peace for twelve months, or, in default, a further three months' imprisonment.

An appeal was lodged.

EXTENSIVE DRIVES IN NORTH CLARE.

During the week there has been extensive cattle-driving in North Clare, and the stock has been cleared from many of the grazing tracts.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR SALE OF COUNTY WESTMEATH ESTATE.

At a largely-attended meeting of the tenants of the Killua estate, Clonmellon, a committee was formed to make arrangements for the purchase of the castle and grounds.

CAVALRY TROOPS FOR ROSCOMMON AND LONGFORD.

On Saturday, and again yesterday morning, further contingents of cavalry arrived at the North Wall from Holyhead by the London and North-Western steamers. The arrivals on Saturday numbered 115 troopers of the 9th Lancers from Tidworth, and yesterday the ss. Slieve Bawn, of the L.N.W.R., running as a special troop steamer, brought over from Holyhead some 272 further troopers and their horses, etc. Longford and Castlerea were stated to be the destination of the contingents.

CORK FARMER FIRED ON AND WOUNDED.

William Barry, Ballydaniel, near Ballymacoda, Co. Cork, was fired at and wounded with gunshot in both legs as he was returning from early Mass yesterday morning. Barry is one of a family of two brothers and two sisters in possession of a boycotted farm.

IRISH SHIPPING CONTRACT DISPUTE.

ENGLISH JUDGE'S CAUSTIC REMARK.

The action brought by the Cork Gas Consumers Company, of Cork, against Messrs. Witherington and Everett, shipowners, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, claiming damages for alleged breach of a charter party made in June, 1914, by which defendants undertook to provide ships to carry 25,000 tons of coal from Newcastle to Cork, between June, 1914, and June, 1915, was decided on Friday, before Mr. Justice Bailhache, in the Commercial Court of the King's Bench Division.

His Lordship entered judgment for the plaintiffs for an amount of damages to be agreed by the parties, on his directions, with costs.

A stay of execution was granted to the defendants, in view of an appeal on the question of construction.

During an argument in the case, Mr. Leslie Scott, K.C., asked why should Ireland have to wait for coal while the French got it. His lordship, however, advised counsel that he had better not raise that question, or somebody would get shot. (Laughter.)

TWENTY STROKES OF THE CAT.

SEQUEL TO HOLD-UP OF ENGLISH POST OFFICE.

At Leeds Assizes on Saturday James Wiltshire (22), hawker; Albert Jackson (28), crucible pot maker, and John Jackson (26) were found guilty of an attempt to hold up the Gibraltar street Post Office, Sheffield, last month.

In passing sentence, Mr. Justice Avory said:—You three men, cowards and bullies as you are, selected this post office because you knew that it was occupied only by a woman. The chief object of punishment is to deter others from committing like offences. In my past experience, there is only one thing that deters bullies like you from committing these offences, and I hope what I am about to do may deter others. You will go to penal servitude each for five years, and each will receive twenty strokes with the cat.

THE LATE SIR THOMAS RUSSELL.

At the meeting of the Insurance Committee for the County of Dublin, held at Cavendish House, Dublin, on Thursday, the following resolution was adopted:—"The members of the Insurance Committee for the County of Dublin have learned with deep regret of the death of the Right Hon. Sir Thomas W. Russell. They desire to tender to their colleague, Lady Russell, and to Miss Russell, their sincere sympathy with them in their sad bereavement."

IRISH RAILWAY CLERKS.

QUESTION OF CLASSIFICATION.

The special delegate conference of the Irish branches of the Railway Clerks' Association was resumed on Saturday evening in Barry's Hotel, Dublin—Mr. T. H. Gill, J.P., President, in the chair.

Mr. A. G. Walkden, General Secretary, submitted a report of the negotiations with the Irish railway managers and the Ministry of Transport on the dispute arising from the classification of the station masters and clerks, and stated that a committee of four representatives from the Clerks' Association and four representatives of the managers had been appointed to meet this morning to revise the classification. An expert assistant from an English railway was being sent over by the Ministry of Transport to act in an advisory capacity. Mr. Walkden added that many important points had been conceded on the men's side, and urged that the rank and file should support the Association's representatives on the Joint Committee.

The conference accepted Mr. Walkden's report by a majority after considerable discussion, with the addendum that the classification should be completed not later than the 22nd May, when the conference will reassemble to decide whether it is acceptable or not.

A mass meeting of railway clerks was held on Saturday night in the Banba Hall, when addresses were delivered by the President and General Secretary, and the action of the conference was endorsed by a large majority.

A resolution was passed demanding a classification for lady clerks not later than 22nd May, the Association promising full support.

DUBLIN BUILDERS' CLAIMS.

THE EMPLOYERS' OFFER.

At a conference in Dublin on Saturday between representatives of the Dublin Master Builders' Association and of the Builders' Section of the Transport Workers' Union in reference to the recent demand for a 44-hour week and an all-round increase of 6d. per hour, the masters conceded a 44-hour week and offered an increase in the rates of pay of 3d. per hour for tradesmen and 2½d. per hour for labourers. This offer is to be considered by the men.

SETTLEMENT ARRIVED AT IN BELFAST.

The various organisations connected with the Belfast Branch of the National Federation of Building Trades Operatives have decided to accept the offer of the employers of a 44-hour week at 2s. 5d. per hour for tradesmen, and 1s. 4d. and 1s. 5d. for labourers and hodsmen. New conditions are also put forward for apprentices in regard to wages, etc., and the apprenticeship term is reduced from six to five years.

DUBLIN CINEMA WORKERS' DISPUTE.

Following their dispute in connection with a picture house in Talbot street, the operators in the cinemas in Dublin and the townships who are members of the Electrical Trades Union came out on strike on Saturday morning. The result was that some of the cinemas were unable to open on Saturday evening, but the principal houses managed to keep going.

A conference, over which Mr. David Frame presided, was held yesterday between representatives of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association and the Irish Transport Workers' Union and the Theatrical Cinema Employés' Branch, at which the Transport Union arranged to provide operators as far as possible for the cinemas, and in the meantime instructed the members of their union who are operators to remain at work.

A meeting of the proprietors will be held at 12 o'clock to-day to consider the matter.

PORT SHIPPING CLERKS' STRIKE.

The situation at the Port of Dublin on Saturday and yesterday showed no change as regards the strike of the shipping clerks employed at the North and South Wall offices of the British and Irish Steampacket Company, Ltd. The trouble had not, however, extended to other lines of steamers sailing to and from Dublin, and the office staffs of these latter continued at their duties.

DUBLIN DOCKYARD WORKERS' DISPUTE.

The shipbuilding yards of the Dublin Dockyard Company remain "shut down." Many of the former employés crossed the Channel to new work at Birkenhead on Saturday last.

ENGINEERING TRADES UNION.

IRISH ORGANISATION FORMED.

At a meeting of men engaged in the engineering trades, which was held in the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. Joseph Tormey presiding, it was decided to establish a trade union to cater for all the men in the engineering industry, the union to be called the Irish Engineering, Shipbuilding, and Foundry Trades Union, and to appoint an organising committee to act as a provisional executive, with power to add to its number, to frame rules to govern the union.

The meeting was convened to consider the formation of an Irish trades union to be composed of the following trades in the engineering industry:—Fitters, pattern workers, boilermakers, blacksmiths, brass finishers, iron and brass moulders, electricians, and machinists. In the circular which called the meeting it was stated that this decision had been arrived at as a result of the action of different English executives in connection with the treatment meted out to their Irish members on several occasions.

The Chairman said that the necessity for the proposed union was obvious to most men. They often found that their interests and the interests of the people across the Channel clashed, and they could not always view matters from the same standpoint. They were progressing in the Labour movement in Ireland far quicker than they were in England, and the question was whether they were going to be held back by the people in England, because they were not progressive enough. In Ireland they found themselves tied up with red tape and cast iron rules made in England, and it was time that they took a step of their own. There would be opposition to this new union, but they were prepared to deal with it, from whatever quarter it came.

Mr. J. J. Redmond said that there were rumours that the new movement was a Sinn Fein plot, and also that it was run by the Transport Union; but it was merely an honest attempt to unite all trades in the engineering industry. The union which they were inaugurating had been considered by business men, and they were getting an overdraft from a bank in Dublin for as much money as they might require.

Mr. P. F. McIntyre said that the movement was necessary in their own interests and in the interests of Ireland.

The resolutions establishing the union and appointing an organising committee having been passed, the meeting concluded.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

The Dublin District Synod met in the Centenary Church, Rev. W. R. Budd presiding. The business was directed by Rev. J. A. Duke, B.A., Secretary, and there was a good attendance of ministers and lay members. It was reported that there was a net decrease of 21 members on the Dublin District during the year. Letters of sympathy were sent to Mrs. J. J. Irwin and Mr. W. J. Storey.

Rev. R. C. Phillips was elected to represent the Synod on the Stationing Committee, and Mr. A. H. Gibson was elected to the General Committee of Management.

Revs. T. E. Gibson (Clontarf) and John O. Price (Wicklow), having given notice of their intention to retire at the forthcoming Conference from the active work of the ministry, the Synod passed resolutions regretting their retirement, and placing on record the high esteem in which these ministers were held, and the splendid services rendered by them to the Church.

Reports on various aspects of work, such as education, local preachers, temperance, Sunday schools, and Christian endeavour were presented and discussed.

A resolution was passed approving the formation of a United Temperance Council, representative of the Churches in Ireland, and another resolution urged a greater amount of federation between the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches in the South and West of Ireland.

MATINEE IN AID OF CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL.

The second matinée arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne in the Theatre Royal, Dublin, in aid of the Children's Hospital, Harcourt street, and the Orthopædic Hospital, Merrion street, was held on Saturday in the presence of a large and appreciative audience. The programme was the same as on the previous day, and included dances of many nationalities, fairy sports, and flower revels. The children, if it were possible, seemed even more at home on the stage than on Friday, and Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne are to be congratulated on the result of what must have been genuine hard work. Amongst the children who had to repeat their dances were Beatrice Leggett Byrne, Leonora Harper, Ethna Boland, Sheila Williams, and Rosie Zeider. At the conclusion of the matinée Mr. Leggett Byrne thanked all those who had supported the performances, and made special mention of Mr. Bailey, who had given him valuable assistance with the playlet, "In Aready." Mr. Maddock, on behalf of the hospitals, thanked the popular promoters for their work for those institutions.

IRISH NURSES MENTIONED FOR WAR SERVICES.

The names of Sister Miss B. Fox and Sister Miss K. Nealon, of the Irish Counties War Hospital, Glasnevin, have been brought to the notice of the Secretary of State for War for valuable Red Cross nursing services during the war.

THE FEIS CEOIL.

FINISH OF A SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL.

The competitions in connection with the annual Feis Ceoil came to a conclusion on Saturday last in the Antient Concert Rooms, Great Brunswick street, Dublin. It was a very successful festival, and the various contests, despite the fact that there was a decrease in the total number of entries as compared with last year, evoked the keenest competition. As is usual on the last day of the Feis there were not so many visitors present, the fact that the solo wind instruments, brass and reed bands, and flute bands' competitions had to be postponed to a later date, most likely interfered to some extent with the attendance.

THE RESULTS.

Irish Fiddle (Senior)—Adjudicator, Mr. Arthur Darley. Tests—(a) "The Blackbird"; (b) "Peter Street" (reel); (c) "The Rakes of Kildare" (jig); (d) "The Rights of Man" (hornpipe); (e) "The Humours of Bandon" (set dance).—1st prize, Mrs. Sheridan, 35 Lower Dominick street, Dublin; 2nd, Mrs. Bridie McGuinness, 53 South William street, Dublin; 3rd, Mrs. Whelan, 29 Upper Dorset street, Dublin.

The Adjudicator remarked that the execution of some of the players was extremely good, and would be creditable to any artiste. There were many difficulties, he said, presented by Irish music, for it was memory that had to be depended on in making it. Nevertheless, their power of retention was sufficiently strong to help them over that difficulty.

Irish Fiddle (Junior)—Tests (a) "The Coolin"; (b) "The Scholar" (reel); (c) "The Connaughtman's Rambles" (jig); (d) "The Cork Hornpipe." 1st prize, Miss Bridie Gough, Windsor Cottage, Rathmines.

Irish Pipes—1st prize, Liam Walsh, 14 Sallypark, Waterford; 2nd, Leo Rowsome, 125 Harold's Cross, Dublin.

The Adjudicator said that the Feis at present seemed to be nothing more than a prize fight in contradistinction to the ideals of uplifting Irish music which animated the founders 23 years ago. He wished that there was some school of Irish music which would bring about the study of the character that was in some of the Irish tunes and the idioms expressed in them.

The results of the unpublished Irish Airs and "Milligan Fox" Medal competitions will be announced at a later date.

Male Vocal Quartette, 2nd prize.—The names of the winning quartette should have read as follows:—Wilton Quartette (Dublin)—Messrs. J. Price, J. B. Taylor, L. A. Banton, F. Scales.

PRIZE-WINNERS' CONCERTS.

There was a crowded audience at both concerts given by the prize-winners at the Antient Concert Rooms. In order to endeavour to accommodate the audience, the programme was first given in the afternoon, and repeated in the evening. It was thoroughly enjoyed on each occasion, and it was gratifying to find a hearty appreciation extended to the efforts of the artists, especially those who were not previously heard. A delightful interpretation of Brahms "Rhapsody" was given by Miss Rhoda Coghill whose performance was stamped with artistic finish. A cordial reception was accorded to Mr. Michael Gallagher, who earned the distinction of winning three competitions—the baritone and Denis O'Sullivan medals and the Plunket Greene Cup—and whose vocalism has won general admiration. He gave a finished rendering of "The Erl King." Another excellent performance was that of the trio comprising the Misses Stokes, Wilkinson, and Starkie, whose interpretation of Beethoven's C minor trio was distinguished by a scholarly finish. Mrs. Laing, who won the soprano competition, pleased her hearers by her rendering of "One Fine Day." Mr. Denis Cox evoked warm applause for his singing in Irish of Miss Milligan Fox's, "Na Cumin." Another artist whose singing came as an agreeable surprise to the audience was Master W. G. Bailey, a youngster with a pleasant voice and agreeable method. Most of the other prize-winners also acquitted themselves capably. The programme was, of course, very long, but the enthusiasm of the audience was maintained throughout, and the concert as a whole may be regarded as one of the best of its kind that has been held in recent years.

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND.

At a meeting of the Diocesan Council of Ardagh, on the 4th inst., it was proposed by the Archdeacon of Ardagh, seconded by Major-General Battersby, C.B., and adopted:—"That the Council has sorrowfully to record the death, on the 21st of April, of the Very Rev. Thomas Reilly, Dean of Ardagh, whose long ministry of forty-four years was wholly given to the service of the Church and diocese of Ardagh. By a will made many years ago he has left all that he possessed to the present Bishop of the diocese, with the intention that it should be utilised at the discretion of the legatee for the benefit of the Union of Killashee and Ballymacormack, in which so many of his best years were spent. A sympathetic friend, a wise counsellor, a man of fearless integrity, in a ripe old age he has exchanged the labour and sorrow of earth for the larger life beyond, leaving many to mourn his departure."

The Bishop has fixed Tuesday, June 22nd, for the meeting of the Ardagh Diocesan Synod, in the Hall, Church street, Longford.

Last Sunday morning, in St. Anne's Church, Ballyshannon, the Bishop of Derry dedicated a memorial tablet to twenty members of Kilbarron Parish who made the supreme sacrifice in the war. Rev. J. B. Tarleton, B.A. (rector of the parish), conducted the Service, and the Lessons were read by Captain the Rev. W. Aiken, C.F., Finner Camp. The musical portion of the service was accompanied by members of the D.C.L.I., Finner Camp, by permission of Colonel Deane. In the afternoon Dr. Peacock conducted a service at Carricknahorna Hall, in an outlying portion of the parish, and dedicated a bell presented for use at the services by Mr. Henry Stubbs, D.L.

ST. JAMES'S PARISH CHURCH, DUBLIN.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Special Anniversary Services in connection with St. James's Parish Church, James's street, Dublin, were held yesterday, there being good congregations present at both Morning and Evening Services. The preacher at Morning Service was the Archbishop of Dublin, who took as his text: "In the year that King Uzziah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and His train filled the temple" (Isaiah vi.-1). His Grace spoke of the vision that Isaiah had of the Lord in His glory, and said that when they turned over the pages of the Bible they felt that in the Old Testament, at all events, there was nothing greater than the prophet Isaiah. They saw what a great man he was, and what a master of language he was. They found that Isaiah's message was a sad and depressing one, yet it became a message of holiness and greatness and power. It showed that when a man did the work God gave him it was to be a greater thing than he imagined at the time. There was some definite work for each to do in life. They had all work to do for God. They had some share to take in His great work. In many ways the opportunity was given them to take that share. They, on the occasion of the Anniversary Services in connection with that church, were thinking that day about the years that had passed while they had worshipped there Sunday after Sunday, month after month, and year after year. For what purpose had they come to the House of God? They came to worship Him, to join in public prayer and praise, and to hear the Word of God. But there was a greater purpose still. They came to enjoy the vision of God in all His glory. "Where two or three are gathered in My Name there Am I in the midst of them." When they came to the House of God they were in the presence of the Lord Himself. They realised His presence, and they heard His voice. He was sure that it had been so in that church year after year. Might God bless the work that was going on there for His Name's sake.

Rev. T. Hunter, London, was the preacher at Evening Service.

THE LATE PRIMATE.

At a Committee meeting of the Church of Ireland Jews' Society, held at 16 Harcourt street, Dublin, the following resolution was passed:—"The Committee of the Church of Ireland Jews' Society desire to place on record their sense of the great loss which the whole Church of Ireland, and this Society in particular, has sustained through the death of the late Lord Primate. The Society owes much to his wise counsel and inspiring advocacy of Jewish Missions, while his geniality and kindly words have time and again cheered and uplifted many a worker in the cause of Israel. The memory of John Baptist Crozier, Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of All Ireland, and patron of this Society, will ever be a precious treasure to the members of the Committee and all who in this country seek the peace of Jerusalem. The Committee desire to express their deep sympathy with Mrs. Crozier and the other members of the family."

ASSAULT UPON A HUSBAND.—Bridget McCabe was on Saturday at the Dublin Police Court sentenced to a month's imprisonment for having struck her husband, William McCabe, behind the ear with a mug. He was an ex-soldier, living in Fleming place, and she counter-charged him with having boxed and kicked her. Mr. Swifte did not believe her story, and dismissed her complaint. She was ordered to be imprisoned for an additional month if she did not enter into bail to keep the peace.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

UNIONISM AND AFTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The amazing attitude of the Government towards this insane and sanguinary Irish revolution is, indeed, beyond the comprehension of the ordinary man or woman; but the sickening tragedy daily unfolded before a bewildered and befooled people, when weighed in the balance against a still more astonishing reality, sinks into but a secondary rank. The spectacle is, indeed, sufficiently dreadful of what should be a British Government, with all the resources of civilisation and long experience behind it, deliberately shrinking before, and kow-towing to, a horde of Bolshevistic anarchists, whose openly declared aim is the ruin of the Empire, and whose avowed motive is undying hatred of Britain and all who are loyal to her. But what is to be said for the British House of Commons, which not only tolerates this political roguery, nurtured by trickery and a paganlike expediency, but also gleefully assists the Ministerial backsliders in their machinations for the forging of an instrument which must inevitably deal a death blow to loyalty and freedom—to peace and prosperity throughout the island which serves as the western entrance to the Kingdom, and is also one of the main strategic keys of the Empire?

In the opinion of the writer and of many thousand others, never before was there a position at all resembling the present in our history. The outstanding feature of it is that the well-known Unionist Party, formed to safeguard the Kingdom from the dread calamity of partition and its eventual separation from Ireland, now approaching with giant strides, has, for reasons best known and understood by the Belfast Council, decided to scrap its Unionism just at the moment when, as the Morning Post observed, its principles had been triumphantly vindicated before the world. This once great patriotic combine, which ever since the first Rebellion had been more or less wobbling under professional politicians' seductive suggestions, is now openly joining in the manufacture of a Home Rule Bill which will hand over to the deadly enemies of Britain three Irish provinces, with their three hundred and fifty thousand loyal inhabitants, and many other thousands who would be loyal if they dared, together with three Ulster counties as an additional sop to the revolutionaries, and also as an apology to the latter for withholding the remaining six in the meantime. Under the Bill Ulster is blotted out, there being but a small enclave left of the Imperial Province, practically surrounded by foes, and directly coupled up with the great Sinn Fein Parliament, which we had sworn never to recognise. Such is the poor, palsied Pale which is all that is left to us of the Imperial Province, and such, it seems, is the miserable result of our long battle for "Hands off Ulster." With these facts before us, how any man, or body of men, can dare to say that we have got all we ever professed to fight for is incomprehensible. We have got practically nothing, and may yet find that we have secured even less than some may imagine before the great deal has been worked out.

The whole situation, especially when viewed in connection with the now established facts concerning the Mountjoy "hunger strike," exposes a state of demoralisation in high places and collusion with wrong-doers that is not only disgraceful, but intensely alarming as regards the future. It may, I think, be unhesitatingly asserted that even the shameless Bolshevism and heathenish savagery of Sinn Fein methods are not so nauseating or revolting to honest men as the incredible fact that the predominant party in the House of Commons—and that the former Unionist Party—sheltering themselves under newly-discovered "arguments" for quite old facts, and relying upon that kind of evidence upon which the traditional dog could not be hanged, turned their political coats, joined up with the famous political conjurer, let the Home Rule Bill through, and will soon be happy and busy transferring the King's subjects to the tender mercies of an infatuated and fanatical nation of moonstruck mountebanks, and anarchists. No possible excuse could for a moment be tendered or listened to for the forcing of a Home Rule Bill in the present direful state of Ireland, or for handing such a gift to a crack-brained people, who jibe at the very idea of offering them anything but a complete cut-off from the control of Britain. To manufacture or pass such a Bill at such a time is a barefaced payment of blackmail, an abominable desertion of loyal and tried friends, and an absolutely unequalled example of political infamy and insanity. Is there not a man in the House of Commons who would earn the eternal gratitude of the whole Kingdom by denouncing this amazing and altogether abnormal crime?—Yours, etc.,

RICHARD DAVISON.

IRISH SECONDARY TEACHERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The notice signed by the Secretary of the Association of Secondary Teachers announcing a strike, which appeared in the Press this morning, is misleading, as it should only refer to the assistants in Roman Catholic schools, who are a much smaller body than the Protestant teachers. The numbers are 506 and 790 respectively.

When the A.S.T.I. decided to affiliate with the Irish Trades Union Congress—a political body—the Protestant teachers resigned and joined the Incorporated Association of Assistant Masters and the Irish Union of Assistant Mistresses. These two bodies have a working arrangement, and they alone are entitled to speak for the lay teachers in Protestant schools. These associations are endeavouring to secure adequate salaries for their members, and the indications are that a strike will not be necessary.

This disclaimer must not be taken as a condemnation of the policy of the A.S.T.I. My association has the greatest sympathy for the Catholic teachers, and has done all in its power to protect their interests.—Yours, etc.,

GEORGE A. WATSON, Honorary Secretary,
Irish Executive Council.
Incorporated Association of Assistant Masters in Secondary Schools,
Dublin, May 8th, 1920.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. John Thompson's letter in Thursday's issue of your paper on the Irish intermediate crisis is a valuable historical document. Mr. Thompson, an Englishman, and one of the best headmasters in Ireland, asks the old, old questions—Do the County Councils care? Does the Government care? Does anyone care?—and the answer, with varying emphasis, is "No!"

That, then, is the state of higher education in Ireland—the only legally recognised spiritual value left, since even Christianity has been disestablished—nobody cares! I do not know how far Mr. Thompson is a propagandist in practice for Irish "self-determination," but this "nobody cares" message of his is an indictment of the whole fabric of Irish Government as it has hitherto existed. Nobody can care, in the true sense of the word, so long as the country as a whole is distracted by a bigger issue.

I may, I hope, without being egotistical, explain why I write keenly on the subject of education in Ireland. I left the country as a very young man, and became a teacher in England. This, I thought, is the noblest calling, when I found myself respected, a citizen with a citizen's pay. I returned to Ireland then, filled with my enthusiasms for youth as I had learned them on the Continent and in England. At once the disillusionment began. When I taught in a "disloyal" school I found the boys timid and feebly slavish. Among the "loyalists" I discovered a generation consciously proud. Yet, from my experiences in the world, I could find fundamental unities in both those groups. But no one had ever attempted to develop them. The outside Government, for ever defending itself on the ground that it was a peace-maker between incompatible sections, really for ever widened the breach. In heart-break and despair, I left the hopeless place.

You will then, I pray, sir, publish my testament that, with Mr. Thompson—whose worth I know because for three years I worked under him—I believe that "nobody cares" because nobody has ever been allowed yet to exercise in Ireland the right to solve one's own problems in one's own way. That is the only logic of the situation as I have learned it by experience. It is not any "hate England" or "love America" or "friends with Germany" argument. I plead it in all sincerity as one who has lived the bulk of his working life on the politically heretical edge of his own people.—Yours, etc.,

BEER AND THE BUDGET.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I want to point out the position of the small brewer under the load of taxation imposed upon him by the Budget. In 1914 the duty was 7s. 9d. per standard barrel; it was gradually increased to 70s.; it has now been increased to 100s., or by no less than 1,190 per cent. It is a matter of common knowledge that the large brewery trusts are gradually absorbing the small individual brewer or company, and in Ireland this is more accentuated. From breweries being dotted all over the country the number is now reduced to twenty.

Brewers in country districts cannot do sufficient trade locally to keep their overhead charges within reasonable compass; therefore, they have to go farther afield, and to the already existing high railway rates has been added 1s. flat rate, plus 60 per cent., while the freight on empties has been increased 100 per cent. As you are aware, the cost of barley jumped this season from, say, 68s. to 110s., and even 120s. per quarter. Hops in pre-war days were, roughly, 1s. per lb.; according to Government regulations they are now £20 to £22 per cwt. Casks have gone up enormously in cost; coal, labour, upkeep, and renewals in proportion; and, while it is quite possible for a great firm doing a trade in heavy gravity bottling-stout, with its overhead charges reduced on account of the magnitude of its output, to continue to prosper under any Budget, I think it is clear that the smaller fry will be driven to the wall.

The writer had the honour of being one of a deputation who waited upon the Chancellor, who frankly admitted that it was true that smaller brewers were disappearing, and I made a suggestion to him, for which I would like to get public support—i.e., that, while he allows the frame-work of his Budget to stand, he would give an allowance of 10 per cent. on the total duty paid on the first 10,000 barrels brewed by any brewer (including the large concerns); 5 per cent. on the total duty paid on the second 10,000 barrels; 2½ per cent. on the total duty paid on the third 10,000 barrels.

The smaller and moderate sized brewers in England, Scotland, and Wales would welcome this as a concession, and it would enable them to trade and make progress, and the country would still derive the benefit of the heavy taxation on the large quantities made by the big brewers. No public man can conscientiously see business undertakings that have been built up out of reserve funds and the labour of a lifetime demolished, when they can be saved by so simple a suggestion. Owing to the conditions of the money market, the result of the war, these reserve funds are depleted by their falling values by, roughly, 50 per cent.; while, if a brewer has to borrow to meet the demands of the Chancellor, he has to pay at least 7½ per cent. for his overdraft.—Yours, etc.,

CLERICAL STIPENDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I am troubling you with a line to mention a hardship to which some clergymen have to submit in the payment of their stipends by the Church Body. This parish received, many years ago, an endowment of £1,500, bequeathed by a former incumbent, the interest to be given in augmentation of the stipend of the rector. The Church Body allow only 3½ per cent. interest on this sum, which brings in £52 10s. a year, as an increase to the rector. Interest on trust money can now easily be obtained as high as 5 per cent., and more. Why, then, should not the clergyman get this—or, say, 4 per cent. at least—in augmentation of his stipend? Surely in these times of difficulty and stress this interest ought, in equity and fairness, to be paid to the clergy who are thus concerned. Could not this be settled at the next General Synod?—Yours, etc.,

THE FOOD EMBARGO.

IRISH FARMERS' INDICTMENT OF LABOUR.

Addressing a largely-attended meeting of the County Kilkenny Farmers' Union on Saturday, Mr. D. J. Gorey, J.P., propounded a new aspect of the embargo on the export of Irish butter and bacon. He said that an article which he saw in a recent issue of the Irish Times contained the richest piece of irony that he had ever read. It stated that Labour having once tasted blood (in this case the blood of the bacon curers and Irish farmers) would not rest content without a continuous ration of the same liquid; but had it stated that the bacon curers and Labour Party had tasted the blood of the Irish farmers it would exactly have sized up the situation. The Irish bacon curers' price before the embargo was £11 4s. per cwt, but at that price they could get no supply, as Irish pigs were making up to, and in some cases, over £13 per cwt. in England. Irish bacon curers had moved heaven and earth to keep control on in order to keep out competition by confining the whole Irish trade to themselves. When they failed with Dublin Castle they looked around, and soon found men for their job. These people, who never owned or fed a pig, proceeded to sign away the Irish farmers' produce and liberty. They arrived at an agreement whereby 17 1-5 per cent. of pigs were allowed to be shipped, this representing heavy sows and boars, unsuitable to the Irish trade, and all the rest were secured for the Irish curers at their own price. Seventy per cent. was allowed to be shipped by the curers to England, and the remaining 30 per cent. ear-marked, as it always had been, for the Irish trade, this consisting of low-grade sides, backs, breasts, and feet. The net result was that it had secured to the Irish bacon curers just two million cwts. of Irish pork at their own price, and absolutely eliminated all competition. In other words, the curers were enabled to secure Irish pigs at £4,000,000 less than their own fixed price before the Irish Labour Party came to their assistance, and this price was considerably below English prices, for while the Irish price was £11 4s., the English price was just £13. This new method of the Irish curers of crushing competition and getting the feeder firmly in their talons was vastly in advance of their old method—the Irish supplies can now be secured for £6,000,000 less than the open market would make it.

HE DARKENED HIS GREY HAIR.
Tells How He Did It.
Mr. J. A. McCrea, who was called Grandpa on account of his white hair, and who darkened it with a home-made mixture, made the following statement:
"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will restore the natural colour to grey hair. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine, and a small box of Orlex Compound. These ingredients can be bought at any chemist's at very little cost, and mixed at home. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This is not a dye, it does not colour the most delicate scalp, is not greasy, and does not rub off. It removes dandruff, promotes the growth of the hair, and makes harsh hair soft and glossy."—(Advt.)

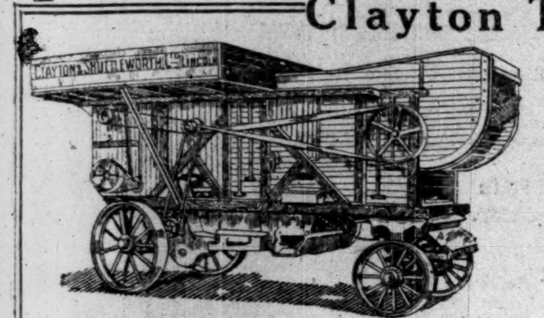
Stand 78
At the Agricultural Show

To-morrow, visitors to the Agricultural Show will have the opportunity of inspecting, under ideal conditions, the most comprehensive exhibit of Agricultural Machinery and Implements, Motor and Steam Lorries, that we have ever shown. In order to make this display, we were obliged to book more than twice as much space as last year, and we are satisfied that in doing so we are maintaining our reputation of "Keeping abreast of the times."

The following are our principal exhibits:—

Clayton Threshing Machines



The standard model, as illustrated, is fitted with an improved chaff cleaning, elevating and bagging apparatus, which is provided with riddles for removing both light and heavy dust. The chaff is elevated to the bagger by a fan and, is thoroughly cleansed in the process. All obnoxious substances are removed, and complete separation of seeds is secured.

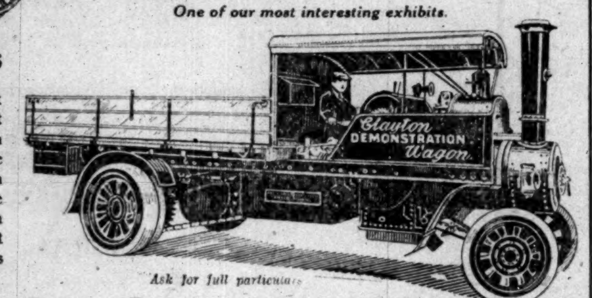
More than 12,000 of these machines have been sold.

The frame is built of seasoned oak, the mechanism is simple and is compactly assembled in such a way as to be easily accessible.

One of our most interesting exhibits.

Clayton Steam Waggons

These waggons are made by Messrs. Clayton & Shuttleworth, Ltd., of Lincoln. They are most economical in action and thoroughly dependable in every respect. The large boiler and engine in the 1920 Models enable them to steam easily within the easy control of the driver. Road strains are transmitted through the rear axle, and this has been made exceptionally large and strong, and the great strength of the main frame effectually prevents distortion.



Ask for full particulars.

Other exhibits include Clayton Traction Engines and Crude Oil Engines

Full particulars on request.

Foden Steam Waggons

Show a saving of 50 per cent. over horse haulage. They are working in every district in Ireland, in almost every kind of industry, to the entire satisfaction of owner and driver alike. Messrs. Guinness, Son, & Co. use "Fodens."

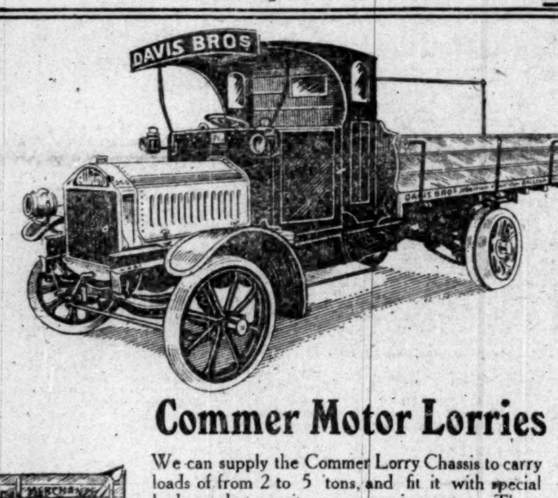
We are Sole Agents for all Ireland.

Albion Motor Lorries

Will render effective service for 9 or 10 years and still have a substantial market value. Only materials of the highest grade are used in their construction, hence their ability to outlive cheaper vehicles. The low cost of maintenance is an "Albion" feature that is bound to appeal to you.

CHASSIS TO CARRY 30, 50, 60 and 80 Cwt. Loads.

You can inspect an Albion at our Stand



Commer Motor Lorries

We can supply the Commer Lorry Chassis to carry loads of from 2 to 5 tons, and fit it with special body-work to suit your requirements. These vehicles have won an enviable reputation for haulage power and dependability during the last 15 years, and are worthy of close inspection.

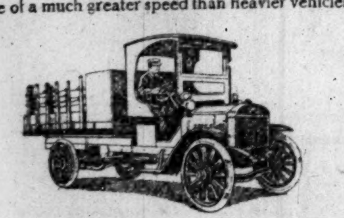
Ask for detailed specification and demonstration.

Small Farmers and Storekeepers

Whose loads average not more than 1 ton should learn all they can about the

G.M.C. TRUCK

It is specially designed to carry loads of this capacity on an economical basis. Fitted with Flexible Spring and Pneumatic Tyres, it is capable of a much greater speed than heavier vehicles



You can see a G.M.C. at our Stand.

CALEDON MODELS

Sturdy simplicity is the outstanding feature of all the "CALEDON" Models, but it is most apparent, perhaps, in the 4 Ton Vehicle. For Goods Service this Chain Driven Lorry is a sound business investment. Vibration is reduced to a minimum, and maintenance cost is extremely low.

May we show you our Caledon Exhibit?

Modern methods tend to the reduction of expense, and enterprising farmers who look upon a capital outlay as an investment should not neglect this opportunity of receiving full particulars of these Exhibits during their visit to the Show.

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVES will be in attendance at the various sections of our Stand, who will demonstrate the various models and explain their mechanism to those interested.

¶ No obligation whatsoever is incurred.

IRISH RAINFALL ASSOCIATION.

LATE MUNSTER AND CONNAUGHT RAINFALL ASSOCIATION.

In addition to the provinces of Munster and Connaught, the Munster and Connaught Rainfall Association is now registering returns from the Counties of Kilkenny, Queen's, King's, Longford, Cavan, and Fermanagh. It is proposed to further extend the area covered by taking in Wexford, Carlow, Westmeath, and Donegal, so as to include all the counties where organisation is most required. Every endeavour will be made to establish new stations in these districts. On account of these extensions, it seems desirable that a change should be made in the name of the Association, so it is proposed that in future it should be known as "The Irish Rainfall Association." This title will allow of further extensions, which it is hoped to make as circumstances permit. The Secretary will be pleased to have the views of members with regard to these proposed innovations.

A copy of the annual report of the Association, containing records of rainfall for 1919 at 120 stations, will be sent on application to any observer who has not already received one. The Association is authorised by the British Rainfall Organisation, and has been formed to assist it, and not in any way to compete with it.

REPORT FOR APRIL, 1920.

A very wet month, very few days being without rain, though there was not much heavy rain. As a rule, mild weather predominated, though towards the end of the month several stations report strong winds, with heavy showers of hail, and ground frost. Barometer readings were usually low, with rapid changes. The rainfall was very erratic, stations only a few miles apart showing great differences in their totals; practically all, however, report quantities well above the average. At Mallow and Clonmel this was the wettest April for 25 years. Totals for the month:—

RISING EXPORTS.

APRIL RETURNS.

INCREASE OF NEARLY £50,000,000.

The chief feature of the Board of Trade returns for the month of April, which were issued on Saturday, was the big increase in exports, particularly when the fact that the Easter holidays fell at the beginning of the month, so reducing the number of working days, is taken into consideration. Another feature is that the increases in the imports and the exports show less disparity than has recently been the case. Last month's imports were valued at £167,154,309, as compared with £112,065,823 in the corresponding month of last year—an increase of £55,088,486.

The exports for the month reached no less a figure than £106,251,692, an increase on April last year of £47,769,280. Three-fifths of the increase in imports fell under the head of raw materials and articles mainly unmanufactured, which showed an advance of £31,691,093. As in previous months, the largest increase was in raw cotton and cotton waste, which accounted for no less a sum than £19,431,215. There is a decrease of £2,556,205 in wool, raw and waste, and woollen rags, and another decrease of £1,106,288 in rubber.

Imports of food, drink, and tobacco rose by £3,718,378, the principal increase being in grain and flour, which rose by £6,101,288. On the other hand, meat fell by £7,550,736. YACHTING.

THE WAG CLUB.

A variable and puffy breeze from the south-west or thereabouts, again gave a tricky sailing wind for the second race of the Wag Club on Saturday afternoon. A fleet of six boats came to the line for the start at 3.50 p.m., and being given the port course, had a reach away at the signal, Coquette slipping away at the head of the fleet, with Phyllis next, and then Blue Bird, Mollie, Barbara, and Wendy in the order named. At the jetty mark Coquette was well clear of the others, and, down wind with spinnakers to port, she increased her lead on the leg to the Hauling Buoy. Here Blue Bird, who was second, fouled the mark and gave up, and on the turn to windward which ensued to the Coal Harbour, Wendy also retired. At the end of the round the order was—Coquette, Phyllis, Barbara, and Mollie, and the subsequent two rounds were sailed in the same order, and with wide intervals between the boats. Coquette steadily increased her lead, and the finish was:—

Coquette (winner) (1 min.)—Mr. G. H. Jones	4 33 18
Phyllis (2nd prize) (2 mins.)—Mr. G. A. Newsom	4 35 17
Barbara (3rd prize) (1 min.)—Dr. J. T. Wigham	4 36 18
Mollie (2 mins.)—Mr. A. E. Snow	4 37 42
Blue Bird (2 mins.)—Dr. G. P. Meldon	gave up
Wendy (scr.)—Mr. E. H. Walpole	gave up

Mr. H. R. Newland was officer of the day.

DUBLIN BAY SAILING CLUB.

This club opens its season on Saturday next with the usual series of matches for all four one-design classes. Though the broken weather has impeded fitting out, the last few days have seen many boats put into the water, and quite a number have already taken up their moorings for the season, while in the dockyard at Kingstown the finishing touches are being put to a number of others. Indeed, so much has been done during the week just finished that it looks as if there will be a very representative muster for the opening day's racing, and here it may be remarked that the starting hours have in all cases been put forward this season, the starting gun for each class being five minutes earlier than hitherto.

BOXING.

MATT WELLS DEFEATS BERMONDSEY WELLS.

The twenty-round contest at the Ring, Blackfriars, on Saturday night between Matt Wells, formerly amateur champion, and late holder of the Lonsdale light-weight belt, and Bermondsey Billy Wells, promised an interesting set-to. They were brought together under welter-weight conditions, and to win that title is both men's ambition. Both were well inside the stipulated 10st. 7lb., but the Bermondsey lad had the pull in height and reach. Matt Wells had all the best of the encounter, however. The first few rounds were light and uneventful, but afterwards Matt did most of the work and drove his man about the ring. He played for the body largely, and had generally the best of the rallies until the fifteenth round, when Bermondsey Wells butted his rival in the stomach, whereupon he was disqualified and the fight awarded to Matt Wells.

JEFF SMITH KNOCKS OUT BALZAC.
(PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.)

PARIS, SATURDAY.

At the Cirque de Paris to-night Jeff Smith knocked out Balzac, France, in the third round. The fight could scarcely be called interesting, Smith having his opponent at his mercy throughout the encounter. The result was never in doubt for a moment, and the only question was how many rounds Balzac would last. The decisive blow came in the third round, when the Frenchman was brought to his knees by a right hook to the body and was counted out. Jeff Smith's rapid victory was warmly applauded. Early in the evening Johnny Alex, an American, knocked out Assdowy, France, in the sixth round, and Eddie Moy, an American, defeated Wally, Spain, on points.

SWIMMING.

LEINSTER BRANCH, IRISH AMATEUR ASSOCIATION.

There was a very large attendance of delegates at the annual general meeting of above, which took place at the Red Bank Restaurant. The report of the Hon. Sec., Mr. H. F. Brennan, showed that swimming, diving, life-saving, and water polo are in a more forward condition at present than has ever obtained in the history of the branch, in evidence of which, amongst other matters, he pointed out that Leinster swimmers took the first three places in every Irish championship last season, and won the Inter-Provincial Water-Polo Championship and the Life-Saving Championship of Ireland. The financial affairs of the branch are very sound. The report was adopted.

An ambitious programme has been arranged for 1920. In addition to the usual championship events, open and club races, water polo inter-provincials, leagues and cup matches, arrangements were made to hold monthly competitions for certificates of proficiency in swimming in schools affiliated to the branch on the lines suggested by Dr. Beckett; to hold a branch gala, an annual race from Kingsbridge to Butt Bridge, and to inaugurate a Water Polo League and Cup Competition for ladies. The arrangements for tests for recommendations to the Olympic Games Committee were left to the Council. Extensive alterations to the rules were adopted. The following officers were elected:—President—Captain N. M. Purcell. Vice-Presidents—Messrs. W. Byrne and T. H. Corrigan. Hon. Secretary—Mr. H. F. Brennan, 10 Charlemont terrace, Clontarf. Hon. Treasurer—Mr. P. J. Whitty, Ivy Bank, Blackrock. Delegates to I.A.S.A.—Messrs. H. F. Brennan, A. J. Cullen, E. N. Proud, W. H Sexton, and Captain N. M. Purcell. Hon. Handicapper—Mr. H. F. Case. Assistant Hon. Handicappers—Messrs. A. J. Cullen and P. J. O'Neill.

ASSOCIATION.

I.F.A. MEETING.

The annual general meeting of the Irish Football Association was held in the Town Hall, Portadown, on Saturday night. The annual report, which showed an increase of 170 clubs affiliated over last season, constituting a record, having been taken as read, a discussion ensued as to which team had become entitled to possession of the Irish Senior Cup. The Chairman stated that, pending the result of the legal action taken by Belfast Celtic against the Association, the cup would be withheld from presentation. A motion by Mr. Sullivan that the clause in the report referring to Shelbourne securing the cup should be deleted having been lost, the report as submitted was passed. The treasurer's report, which showed the receipts for the season as being £4,059 and the expenditure £4,065, which included grants to divisional associations and other funds of £677, was passed. Relative to the proposed alterations to the offside rule and other laws of the game to be submitted to the International Board at London in June, the delegates were given a free hand as to what action they might take. Subsequently an extraordinary general meeting was held, when, amongst several alterations and amendments to the articles of association, the following was the most important passed:—"Players can only be transferred to clubs of other national associations provided such clubs agree to permit said players to play for Ireland in international matches when selected, and clubs having players so transferred cannot re-transfer them to other clubs without getting a like undertaking from the clubs to whom they transfer such players."

SPORTING NEWS.

KEMPTON PARK MEETING—SATURDAY.

THE JUBILEE HANDICAP. VICTORY OF TANGIERS. UGLY DUCKLING UNPLACED.

That the Jubilee Stakes retains its hold on the racing public was evidenced by the huge crowd which turned up at Kempton Park on Saturday despite showery weather. Rain fell heavily at times, particularly prior to the big event of the day. This interfered with the paddock inspection of the "Jubilee" candidates, the crowd being more concerned about finding shelter than viewing the horses, only one or two of which were paraded in the covered ring. Ugly Duckling became a pronounced favourite, and for a long way he gave his backers a good show, but, after leading to the straight, he was beaten a quarter of a mile from home. Then Monteith was left in the van, but he in turn gave way to Tangiers, with Manilardo second. The latter made a great effort, but could never quite get on terms with Tangiers, who had not run in public since Goodwood last year. Odds were laid on Spion Kop for the Spelthorne Three-Year-Old Plate, and these he landed without an effort. The winner, it is worth remembering, is in the Derby. Details:—

A quarter of a mile from home Ugly Duckling was beaten, and Monteith was followed by Tangiers and Manilardo. Below the distance Tangiers drew to the front, and, resisting the challenge of Manilardo, won by a length, a neck dividing second and third. SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

T. Burns rode two winners at Ripon Meeting on Saturday.

A race meeting in aid of the funds of the Holles street Maternity Hospital will be held at Baldoyle on June 26.

The death occurred in London on Saturday of Mr. J. G. Bulteel, who won the Grand National with Manifesto in 1899.

After winning the May Auction Plate at Kempton Park on Saturday, the colt by Hapsburg out of Greedy Girl was bought in for 1,350 gns.

At the Ripon Meeting on Saturday Crag Vale accomplished the very unusual, if not unique, feat of winning two consecutive races. After her success in the Yore Plate she was bought in for 300 gns., and was then pulled out half an hour later for the Givendale Plate, in which she set her 7lb. penalty at naught, and was retained at 460 gns.

J. Ruiz and F. Northmore, two of the best jockeys in India, have just arrived in England on a summer holiday. Ruiz, who can go to scale easily at 8st. 5lb., took the last Viceroy's Cup on the Irish-bred First Flier, and in four rides in India's premier race he has won thrice. Northmore is an Australian light-weight, and won sixty-eight races last season in India, heading the list, and ten of these he secured at the Lucknow Spring Meeting.

CRICKET.

LEINSTER SENIOR LEAGUE. DUBLIN UNIVERSITY v. PEMBROKE. TRINITY WIN BY 8 WICKETS.

When play was resumed in this match at the College Park on Saturday Dublin University had exceeded Pembroke's total of 109 by 30 runs, with five wickets still to fall. A. F. Hammond and A. Hobson, who were unbeaten overnight with, respectively, 36 and 11 to their credit, continued to bat with confidence. Hammond brought his total to 52 before being bowled by McGrath. His hits included a six and 2 fours. Hobson increased his score by 23 runs when he was caught and bowled by Murphy. The innings closed for 225, D. R. Pigot carrying his bat for a neatly gathered 19. Left to get 119 to avoid the innings defeat, Pembroke started badly, Murphy and Crawford being disposed of for only three runs. Donnelly steadied matters with a well-played 31, after which some moderate batting was retrieved by Smith, who hit out vigorously in a compilation of 28. Pembroke still wanted six runs when their last batsman, Birmingham, joined Bonass. The pair, however, brought the total to 138 before Birmingham was bowled by Allen for 12, Bonass carrying his bat for a useful 28. Allen came out best of the Trinity attack with 5 wickets for 73, and Mills 3 for 35. Trinity only required 33 runs to secure victory, but before these were secured Aykroyd and Pigot had been got rid of for only four runs. Score:—

LEINSTER v. CLONTARF. A DRAW.

These clubs opened their season at Rathmines on Saturday with a Senior League fixture, in dull weather and on a slow wicket. The game ended in a draw, much in favour of the home club, as when time was up Clontarf were 100 runs behind with only two wickets to fall. Leinster were unlucky not to win, as owing to the rain coming on when Clontarf were batting the players had to retire twice, losing three-quarters of an hour. The feature of the Leinster innings was the reappearance of S. D. Lambert, who had not played since 1911. He went in first, and was not out when the innings was declared at the tea interval. He was at the wickets for over two hours, and only gave one difficult chance while putting together 73. He took some time to settle down, but afterwards played in quite his best style, hitting 1 five and 6 fours. Larkin, when batting splendidly, had the bad luck to be run out after hitting up 44 quickly, his best strokes being fine drives, and he hit seven boundaries. Clontarf started well, E. Boylan and R. W. Carter making a useful stand for the second wicket, but afterwards Feary (22 not out) was the only one to make any show against Ryan, who secured seven wickets for 44 runs. Score:—

CIVIL SERVICE v. UNIVERSITY COLLEGE. CIVIL SERVICE WIN BY 5 WICKETS.

University College opened their cricket season on Saturday, when they opposed Civil Service in the Phœnix Park. The University batsmen fell very badly before P. J. Murphy's leg-breaks, Blanc being the only one to offer any resistance. The latter had scored 22, and was not out, when the innings closed for 44, Murphy taking 7 wickets for 25 runs. Civil Service passed their opponents' total for the loss of only two wickets, and when play ceased had scored 114 for 5, thus winning by 5 wickets and 70 runs. Taylor contributed 49 by means of a vigorous display, which was ended by a splendid one-handed catch in the long field by Francis. Score:—

SURREY v. WARWICKSHIRE. RAIN SPOILS PLAY.

Wretched weather conditions prevailed for the above match, which commenced at Kennington Oval on Saturday. A succession of showers prevented any play between half-past 12 and 20 past 4 in the afternoon, and then the turf was so wet that the Warwickshire bowlers were seriously handicapped. Subsequently the rain came on again, and nothing further happened after 10 minutes to 6. The cricket, therefore, was limited to just under two hours, and Surrey scored 144 for two wickets, Sandham leaving at 17 and Ducat at 122, the second partnership yielding 105 runs in an hour and a quarter. Hobbs reached 50 in 85 minutes, and played some good bowling well, but the conditions for batting were very easy. Surrey played the same team that beat Northamptonshire, and Warwickshire had Cyril Smart, a new man, for Hands. Score:—

LEICESTERSHIRE v. HAMPSHIRE.

The weather at Leicester on Saturday was very cold; hence a very small company assembled to witness the play in the match against Hampshire. There is but little of note to chronicle in respect of the day's proceedings, with which but little enthusiasm was associated. On a wicket making recovery from recent heavy rains the home side was disposed of in three hours and a half for a modest total. The outstanding feature was a capital display on the part of the veteran, Coe, who batted faultlessly for 90 minutes, hitting 5 fours. When Hampshire went in the batting failed to such an extent that in rather less than two hours remaining they lost eight wickets for 69 runs, so that they are in a present minority of 106 runs. Score:—

Leicestershire 175
Hampshire (for 8 wickets) 69

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE v. ESSEX.

Northamptonshire opened their home season on Saturday against Essex, when, with the batting on both sides failing rather badly, two innings were completed with honours easy. Northants had only a moderate side out, including three players new to county cricket, and their batting broke down rather badly against Reeves, who was making the ball turn rather abruptly. Coming on at 25 he frequently had the batsmen guessing, and except for Woolley, who batted steadily for just over an hour, and Wells, who made his runs in free but not faultless style, none of the home batsmen were at all happy with him. His analysis of seven wickets for just under five runs each might have been even better but for the fact that he had Haywood missed when 5. His fine bowling resulted in Northants being disposed of in just under two and a half hours. The Essex reply provided a sensational bowling feat, Woolley doing the hat trick by taking the first three wickets. Russell and McGahey had scored 34 in 35 minutes, when Woolley got busy, getting the amateur taken at mid-on, bowling Freeman, and disposing of Perrin, caught at short-leg with successive balls. Essex had struck a bad patch, and half the side was out for 61. Morris by resisting the bowling for an hour, improved matters, and enabled Essex to secure a lead of 9 runs on the first innings. Score:—

LADIES' INTERNATIONAL MATCH. IRELAND v. ENGLAND. AN EASY ENGLISH VICTORY.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)
NEWCASTLE, SATURDAY.

If the results of to-day's matches in the contest between the Irish and English ladies forms a reliable basis for estimating the chances of the Ladies' Open Championship coming to Ireland the possibility of such a thing happening might be dismissed right off, seeing that the English ladies won all nine matches, the majority of them with the greatest ease. But it would be unwise, on the Irish ladies' showing to-day, to arrive at such a conclusion offhand. Anything may occur in the Championship during the next few days, and it may come to pass that the more fancied aspirants for the title will have disappeared long ere the final is reached, and that a new champion will emerge from among the number whose chances are so lightly brushed aside. Ireland's hopes, however, are centred in last season's finalists for the Irish Championship, Miss Janet Jackson and Miss Marion Alexander; but on paper the Irish Champion, Miss Jackson, appears to have the better chance. More extraordinary things have happened than that Miss Jackson and the English Champion should play their way into the final, but, then, on to-day's form the title would appear a certainty for the English lady, who beat Miss Jackson by 4 and 3.

Miss Jackson was no fewer than four down at the turn after a capital start, for although she lost the first hole in 6 to 5 she took the next two, the second in 4, Miss Leitch being bunkered off her drive, and the third in a very good 4 by getting down a long putt. Miss Leitch won the fourth in 5, and then went right ahead, securing the next three in 4, 3, and 4, the latter being an excellent hole. Miss Jackson looked like taking the eighth, Miss Leitch having missed her drive and second; but the Irish lady was laid a stymie, and she could only get a half in 5. Miss Jackson drove into the bunker to the right from the tee, played a fine shot out, and had a putt for 3, but failed, and Miss Leitch went in off Miss Jackson's ball for a 3 to turn 4 up. Miss Jackson was again stymied at the tenth, which Miss Leitch won in 3, and following a half in 4's at the eleventh, Miss Leitch putting her opponent's ball in for 4. Miss Jackson reduced the lead at the next, being down in 4 after playing a beautiful second on to the green. Miss Jackson had a lovely drive to the thirteenth, but failed to get the green with her iron and lost the hole in 5 to 4; but she got one back at the fourteenth, where she was down in 3 to 4. Miss Leitch, however, had the match well in hands now, and, winning the fifteenth in 4, had the match by 4 and 3.

Miss Marion Alexander and Miss Griffiths, of Sunningdale, had a hard match to the ninth, and they turned all square, but Miss Griffiths took the lead at the eleventh in 3. The Irish lady squared again at the next in 4, but, following a half in 5 at the thirteenth, the English lady, by brilliant play, secured the next three in 3, 4, 4, and thus won by 3 and 2. Mrs. Madill's long game was equally as good as Mrs. Macbeth's, but her weak putting led to a heavy defeat by 6 and 5, the Hermitage captain being very erratic on the greens. Mrs. Hulton should have beaten Miss E. Leitch on the seventeenth green, where she became dormy 1, but going to the home green she duffed two approaches badly, and Miss Leitch, who had been bunkered off the tee shot, won the hole to square matters. Mrs. Hulton's short play again let her down going to the nineteenth, two approaches going wrong, and she lost the hole and the match. Mrs. Dobell was 4 up on Mrs. Cramsie at the ninth, and the latter, putting badly all the way round, was always fighting a losing battle, and eventually lost by 5 and 4. Details:—

IRISH CLOSE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The Irish Close Championships, to be held this month at Castlerock, Co. Londonderry, promise to obtain large support, especially as the Amateur Championship will be played in the Whitsuntide holidays. Already entries for this event have been received from Major C. O. Hezlet, runner-up in the last Amateur Championship held at Sandwich; Captain Ernest Carter, holder of the Irish Championship; Captain E. M. Munn, of the North-West Club; and D. Wilson Smyth, of Royal Co. Down. There will be a strong entry from the clubs in Dublin and the South. Entries for both Amateur and Professional Championships must be made by the club secretaries, enclosing entry fee, and should reach the Hon. Sec., Golfing Union of Ireland, The Manse, Clontarf, not later than Thursday next, the 13th May.

HARRY VARDON 50. CHAMPION IN 1896—CHAMPION TO-DAY.

Harry Vardon, the greatest golfer of all time, celebrated his 50th birthday yesterday (Sunday). He was born at Grouville, Jersey, on May 9th, 1870. James Braid was 50 in February last, and J. H. Taylor, the other member of the famous Triumvirate, will not reach the half-century until March next. Vardon had many reminders of his birthday; he received many congratulations, and in his usual modesty he said "I still keep quite fit, and can hold my place in the front rank."

Many golfers of the very old school still hold out that Young Tom Morris, of St. Andrews, who died on Christmas Day, 1875, when only 25 years of age, was incomparable. Young Tom won the Open Championship on four successive occasions with the old gutta ball. Vardon won his first championship at Muirfield in 1896 with the gutta ball, and he was again successful in 1898 and 1899. It was not until three years later that the rubber ball made its appearance in the form of the famous Haskell ball. Vardon again won the championship in 1903, 1911, and 1914, and as the classic event has not been played since the latter date, he is the champion to-day.

It is a marvellous record—absolutely unique in the history of the Royal and Ancient game.

HARRY VARDON WINS AT LETCHWORTH.

Harry Vardon (South Herts), George Duncan (Hangerhill), James Batley (London Flying Club), and A. Ashby (Letchworth) engaged in competition over the Letchworth course, Herts, on Saturday. Recent rain had made the course rather soft in parts and the showery weather which prevailed handicapped the players to some extent. A stroke competition was played in the forenoon, which Vardon won with a score of 72. Duncan came next with 73, Batley with 75, and Ashby 77. The feature of the morning round was the magnificent golf played by Vardon on the homeward half. He played like the Vardon of old, and holed long putts on the 10th, 11th, 14th, and 18th greens. His only mistake coming home was at the 15th, where he took three putts.

In the four-ball match in the afternoon Duncan and Batley beat Vardon and Ashby by 3 up and 1 to play. Duncan played great golf, and holed long putts at the 1st, 8th, 13th, 14th, and 18th holes. Vardon was scarcely in such good form as in the morning, but he played very well all the same.

ABE MITCHELL v. TED RAY.

The opening of the new course of the Brokehurst Manor Club, Hants., on Saturday was celebrated by an exhibition match between Abe Mitchell (North Foreland) and Ted Ray (Oxhey). Although the weather was showery, the course was in wonderfully fine order, and a large gathering witnessed the play. The single in the morning was very closely contested, and ended all square. In the afternoon a four-ball match was played, in which Ray and Mr. P. Miller (Stoneham) beat Mitchell and Lieutenant Commander Barry, R.N. (Hayling Island) by 3 up and 2 to play.

RATHFARNHAM (LADIES' BRANCH).—The open eclectic foursome competition, organised by Mrs. F. Crawley and Mrs. R. Browne in aid of the Combined Dublin Hospital Fund, was played on Wednesday. THE CHAMPIONSHIP. SMITH v. FALKINER.

The half-way stage of the match between Smith and Falkiner for the Championship at Burroughes' Hall, Piccadilly, was reached on Saturday with the game in a very interesting state. After a keen struggle between the players, during which the fortunes continually fluctuated, Falkiner was leading by two points when play closed on Friday, and he ended Saturday afternoon's stage four points in front, but at night Smith, by scoring 715 to 505, finished with an advantage of 206 points. During the afternoon Falkiner was responsible for runs of 255, 116, and 260, but Smith, by way of response, scored breaks of 253, 95, and 197, the scores at the adjournment being:—Falkiner, 7,205; Smith, 7,201. At night big breaks were few and far between. Smith's best efforts yielded 99, 62, 146, 123, and 83 (unfinished), against 58, 68, and 56. At the close the scores were:—

Smith (in play) 7,916
Falkiner 7,710

INMAN v. NEWMAN.

In this match of 16,000 up at Leicester square, Inman, who is conceding Newman 1,500 points start, again played admirably on Saturday, with the result that when the half-way stage of the match was reached at night he had secured a lead of 738 points. Newman played well, but Inman out-pointed him at each session, and during the day scored 1,408 to 1,150. During the afternoon Inman's best breaks were 133, 190, 86, 246, against Newman's 65, 69, 273, and 147 (unfinished). This he made into 161 at night, afterwards adding 163, 179, 83, and 69, while Inman's highest runs were 114, 64, 128, 156. Closing scores:—

Inman 7,794
Newman (rec. 1,500) 7,056

ATHLETICS AND CYCLING.

PROFESSIONAL RUNNING. MACREA WINS 10 MILES CHAMPIONSHIP.

At Powderhall grounds, Edinburgh, on Saturday, George Macrea, Scotland, and Jean Vermeulen, France, met for the 10 miles world's championship, held by the Frenchman since 1914. Ten thousand spectators watched the race, which was run in gusty weather, and the Scotsman, after leading from the start, won by a lap in 53 mins. 23 4-5 secs.

BRITISH AMATEUR WEIGHT-LIFTING CHAMPIONSHIP.

At the British amateur weight-lifting championship at Brixton on Saturday, J. Hayes won in the 8st. class, beating the world's record with a right hand swing of 115½lbs. He also secured the championship in the 9st. class, with an aggregate of 825lbs. A. Baxter won in the 10st. class with 867lbs., and C. V. Wheeler in the 11st., 12st., and heavy-weight classes, beating the British record for 11st. with a two-handed Continental jerk of 480lbs.

IRISH ROAD CLUB HANDICAP.

The Southern Branch of the Irish Road Club opened its competitive season on Saturday last with a twenty-five miles open handicap. The race was held over an out-and-home course on the Navan road, and the customary practice of each man riding separately against the watch was observed. The afternoon was not favourable, and a good deal of rain fell during the progress of the race, these factors tending to slow times. E. Galway figured on the scratch mark, and won the handicap in 1 hour 16 mins. 35 secs. The times and placings were as under:—

	Actual time. H. M. S.	Handicap time. H. M. S.

Our portrait is of Mr. P. Weightman, of 8 Trafalgar Bridge Chambers, Neate st., Camberwell, London, S.E., who writes:—"Having suffered for a period of eight years with an Ulcerated Leg, and now being entirely cured by Clarke's Blood Mixture, I thought it only right for me to write expressing my gratitude. I have read letters in papers of marvellous cures, but I do not think there is any person who has had such a case as mine, my leg at one time being an open wound below the ankle to the knee. I may say I tried several hospitals, but was told by the doctors there was no cure." In a further letter recently received Mr. Weightman writes:—"My leg still keeps sound and well, and after being cured for 10 years I think this sufficient proof that Clarke's Blood Mixture is invaluable, and deserves all the praise to which it is entitled."

Sufferers from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Eczema, Boils, Pimples, Sores and Eruptions, Rheumatism, Gout, or any kindred complaint should realise that lotions, ointments, etc., can but give temporary relief—to be sure of a cure, complete and lasting, the blood must be thoroughly cleansed of the impure, waste matter, the true cause of all such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes, and expels the impurities. Pleasant to take, and free from any injurious ingredient. Ask for and see you get

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 15th) .... 7 p.c.

LONDON, SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The Money market has ended the week with less tightness than was the case a few days ago, but Lombard street is not working on as all a wide margin, and there was little call money available below 5 p.c. Weekly loans were arranged at 5½ p.c., which was also the rate for other short fixtures. Nearly a million was disbursed in dividends, chiefly upon Maypole Dairy Shares. There was not much doing in discounts, and the tone of the market was still cautious, though the demand for paper up to three months' date showed a slight improvement. Two months' drafts were posted at 6⅛ p.c., three months' at 6¼ p.c., and six months' at 6¼ to 6⅜ p.c. June bills were done at 5½ p.c.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

Markets are gradually getting over the shock of the Budget, and in some directions are shaping quite well. The recovery in the gilt-edged group, which we (Sunday Times) predicted as the result of the Chancellor's proposals for the redemption of floating indebtedness, has commenced, and should proceed further. Treasury Bonds are no longer feared as competitors, since brokers find that their clients are not selling their present holdings in order to subscribe to the new loan. The Oil share market looks as healthy as any, and it is clear that the steps taken to deal with the recent liquidation have been quite successful. The really strong lead from this quarter should put the House as a whole in a more cheerful mood. Textiles also should go ahead now that the wages question has been settled, and in this group Amalgamated Cottons appear a hopeful purchase. In the Foreign market liquidation seems to have run its course, and the steadier appearance of the French exchange is of good augury. The International Conference is drawing near, and the coming discussions as to the amount of Germany's annual payments towards reparation will bring nearer the time when substantial contributions from that quarter will lighten the load on French and British taxpayers. A purchase of French Fives at the present low level would be attended with little risk, and would probably turn out well in the long run.

At an extraordinary general meeting of Maguire, Paterson and Palmer, Ltd., of London, Liverpool, Dublin and Leeds, held at Liverpool, it was unanimously agreed that the capital of the company be increased to £1,000,000 by the creation of (a) 250,000 New Preference shares of £1 each, ranking for purposes of dividend and in all other respects pari passu with the existing 250,000 Preference shares of £1 each, making a total of 500,000 Preference shares of £1 each; and (b) 250,000 New Ordinary shares of £1 each, ranking for purposes of dividend and in all other respects pari passu with the existing 250,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each, making a total of 500,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each.

The list of applications for Jitra Rubber Plantations shares has been closed for both town and country.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Home industrial production still gives but moderate latitude for execution of miscellaneous trade requirements, and in the somewhat pinched condition of supplies values generally remain dear and buoyant. In distributing centres, however, American and Continental goods and specialities are coming into rather prominent evidence and are being quickly bought up. A feature in raw material markets is reflected on striking averages of the fourth series of Government wool sales, which closed on Friday last. Currencies compared with March prices indicate a general depression of 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. In hide and skin markets the former remain firm, but the latter tend lower for wool skins especially, which are yet relatively dear, notwithstanding. Anent the high rates paid and boom for hides, one effect has been that the Argentine last year exported just 3½ per cent. more horse hides beyond what the census figures show in increases of horses in the country per annum. 533,000 horse hides were so dealt with.

Irish still quiet, the reduction of 30/- per cwt. in Danish remains nominal in the absence of supplies, and this description not having appreciably improved the demand up to the present. HAMS still in very small compass, and only obtainable along with grades of bacon which buyers do not want. OILCAKES AND FEEDING STUFFS.—LONDON, Saturday.—LINSEED CAKES—There is a much better feeling in this market, and during the last few days the demand has been of more strength, due to the reduced prices. WOOL.—LEICESTER, Saturday.—Quietness and caution are the predominant features in the wool and hosiery market this week. All kinds of raw material are showing a decline, and English wools, a halfpenny to a penny per pound down, would probably be still cheaper but for the fact that the stocks are very small. Spinners are busy on old orders, but new business is small. Orders for hosiery are also not so good as they have been.

are out to secure nothing less than the most excellent thing in the world. It is possible for men and women to be healthy even under conditions not altogether favourable—as, for example, sedentary occupation, irregular meals, and other drawbacks. Such disadvantages should, of course, be corrected as far as possible. The most important thing is to maintain the digestive system in a state of efficiency; or to restore it to soundness when it has become disordered. To effect either purpose there is one Remedy to be preferred before all others—
